A Change.

Without going into details of why and wherefore, it seemed best when LEWISIANA was revived in 1893 to make subscriptions due on the receipt of the July issue, the first of each volume. Some paid promptly and others at intervals during the year—a few only preferring to pay at the end of the year. Hence came the practice of sending statements of account only to those more than one year in arrears. This method saved for LEWISIANA funds, postage on a large number of subscriptions and also saved much labor in bookkeeping as it was assumed that every subscriber wished the paper continued until a notice to the contrary was received. Of course such a notice should be accompanied by a check in payment of all arrearages.

For several reasons, it now seems best to make a change and during the present (July) month, statements of all accounts in arrears will be sent as well as bills for subscriptions to LEWISIANA for Vol. IX, July 1898 to July 1899. LEWISIANA still has work to do; for the Lewis tract is by no means cleared yet; in fact the division lines are not all staked out. As it seems to be the general wish of its subscribers, LEWISIANA will be sent as before to all names on its subscription list until notice of discontinuance is received. It is hoped that if any are thinking of stopping their paper that they will make a special effort to continue it during the coming year.

Thanks and Suggestions.

Several of our readers constantly send the Lewis clippings and items they come across in their reading. Their kindness makes our departments "Notes and Clippings" of greater interest than otherwise would be the case. The way one kind friend does it may perhaps prove suggestive for many of us during the coming year.

"In one compartment of my pocket book, reserved for LEWISIANA use exclusively, I keep a few blank slips of paper about 3x5 inches. On these I note down whatever I find in my reading relating to Lewises which I cannot clip with my little pocket scissors. Once or twice a month I forward these clippings and notes. The editor does the rest."

The editor would add only, "be sure and give date of the paper from which clipping is taken. Many clippings are received whose sole reference to date is "yesterday, to-day or to-morrow."

Standing Watch.

Watching I wake the while my comrades sleep:
Be Thou, O Lord, from Thy bright throne on high,
O'er land and sea Thy watch and ward dost keep,
As the long, weary hours roll slowly by.

Darkness and clouds begloom the watery plain;
The moon and stars withhold their wonted light:
The winds have ceased their sorrowful refrain,
And silence reigns thro' the dark realms of Night.

But in that brighter world where Thou dost dwell,
Nor Night, nor Darkness is, but Light supreme;
Silence is not: the full-voiced angels swell
Their ceaseless songs, and JESUS is the theme!

Jesus! Thou Light of every weary breast,
Shine in my soul; from darkness set me free;
Guard those who sleep, and give them peaceful rest,
And bless the lonely watcher on the sea.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all, don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

BENJAMIN LEWIS, Stratford, Ct.

CHAPTER CVI.

Died in New York City, on Friday, April 1, 1898, Helen C., daughter of the late Rev. John N. and Sarah H. Lewis.

[Helen (586) v p 115 Vol. VI.—Ed.]

Died suddenly, on Wednesday morning, April 27, 1898, at her residence in Morristown, N. J., Mary Caroline, widow of Augustus C. Richards and daughter of the late Rev. Zachariah Lewis.

[Mary Caroline (556) v p 99 Vol. VI.—Ed.]

HARRINGTON-LEWIS.

Miss May Edwards Lewis was married June 7, 1898, in St. Michael's church, New York City, to John Walker Harrington of that city, by the Rev. John P. Peters. The bride was given away by her father, ex-Assistant District Attorney Lewis. Mr. Harrington has been for several years connected with the editorial staff of the New York Herald, and has contributed a number of short stories to the standard magazines.

CHAPTER VI.

BY MARY F. EASTMAN in "DIO LEWIS."

Flora (20 v p 179 Vol. VIII) and her husband passed some years in the Sandwich Islands, where Dr. Tisdale was physician to the king. Later they returned to the U. S., where the doctor resumed the practice of his profession in partnership with his son in Alameda, Cal.

Loran L. (18) was educated at Auburn Academy. When about 18 years old he warmly enlisted in the Washingtonian movement and was soon recognized as one of the most effective speakers on the subject of temperance. He then studied law, finishing his legal course in the office of Gov. William H. Seward. After his admission to the bar in 1848, he removed to Buffalo, N. Y., and devoted himself with singular zeal, to the practice of his profession. Achieving but moderate success for a few years, he toiled on, occupying an obscure office, accepting no adventitious aids, unwavering in the faith that integrity and fidelity would eventually command success. The result has fully justified his confidence. For several years past he has had a large and lucrative practice.

He steadily declined nomination to office, until in 1870 he accepted that for State Senator which was given him by acclamation, without any solicitation on his part. He held the office of Senator for two terms.

In 1882 he received, unsolicited, the nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, a post which he still fills with fidelity and honor. In all situations he has been an earnest, practical, working American citizen.

CHAPTER CCLXXVIII.

Hymeneal.

The raging elements on Wednesday, Feb. 16, 1898, lessened not the attendance, but rather added to the mirth of the jolly wedding party assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Marshall of Greenwich, N. Y., to witness the marriage of their daughter, Sarah Lewis, to Olin J. Fryer, eldest son of Wilbur Fryer of Easton, N. Y.

At 3:30 P. M. two little nieces of the bride, Elmira and Fannie Marshall, carrying bouquets of maiden hair fern and bridal flower, entered the parlor, followed by the bride on the arm of the groom, when Rev. C. E. Lapp of Greenwich, stepped forward and in a few impressive words made them man and wife.

Immediately following the ceremony refreshments were served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fryer, amid a shower of rice and—snow, left for the train. They will make their home near Saratoga.

[Sarah L. (1991) v p 84 Vol. V.—Ed.]

Died in Ashton, R. I. Apr. 12, 1898, Lucy A., widow of Thomas T. Barber, in her 82d year. The funeral service at her late residence on Lewis farm was conducted by Rev. Robert Murray of Waltham, Mass., assisted by Rev. Wm. Pressey of St. John's Episcopal church. The bearers were Charles Teft, William Lewis, Frank Lewis and Albert Lewis, nephews of the deceased. Interment was at Oak Grove cemetery, Pawtucket.

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

CLIPPINGS.

New Haven, Ct., April 8, 1898. Edwin F. Mersick, president and treasurer of the English & Mersick Company, manufacturers of carriage hardware, died at his home on Chapel street to-night after a protracted illness, aged 60. He was a native of New York. He was also secretary and treasurer of the New Haven Chair Company and a director in the Mechanics National Bank. He is survived by a wife and one daughter Emma, wife of Frederick T. Bradley.

[Emma (1042) v p 166 Vol. VIII. ED.]

Wallingford, Conn., Jan. 22, 1898. —In the death of Mrs. Ann Beaumont, widow of the late John Beaumont, which occurred this morning at 4 o'clock, Wallingford loses its oldest person, as well as its only true daughter of the revolution. She would have been ninety-five years old the 31st of next July.

She was a remarkably active person for one of her years, and had pieced a large number of quilts, some even during the past year, and she was at work upon one when taken with her last illness.

The deceased was born in Branford but had been a resident of this town for upward of seventy years.

She was a daughter of John Tyler, who served in the revolution. He was one of the number who figured in the historic Boston harbor "tea party," being one of those who assisted in throwing the tea overboard. He was also one of the party who went to England and returned on the same vessel which brought back the treaty of peace.

John Tyler lived to the good old age of seventy-nine and Mrs. Beaumont's mother lived to the ripe old age of ninety-six years. John Beaumont, the husband of the departed, died in 1879, aged eighty-eight years.

Mrs. Ann Beaumont was a member of Susan Carrington Clarke chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Meriden. having been a member for two or three years.

Of the ten children the deceased leaves eight now living—Julius, of New Haven; Francis, of North Haven, Mrs. Elizabeth Pond, of Branford; Mrs. P. G. Townsend, Harvey, George, Llewellyn and Albert, of this place. A daughter, Lucina, died a few years ago, and a son, Edmund, aged twenty-two, died at sea in August, 1852, and was buried in California.

[A descendant (said to be) of William Lewis but LEWISIANA records do not show how. ED.]

CHAPTER CXXIX.

A LETTER AND A CLIPPING.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I send you a clipping of the kind you once happily called "a clipping of lighter vein," but one in which I am sure many of your readers will be interested. It concerns Mary A. (1011 v p 150 Vol. VIII) wife of Gen. Geo. H. Ford, a Son of the American Revolution and prominent in all the doings of our beautiful City of Elms.

X.

The walls of the beautiful Colonial and old Dutch dining room of the Ford residence on Trumbull street are done in green as also is the ceiling which is charmingly painted with groups of swallows. A rare and interesting collection of beer mugs and old pewter plates and cups, hang over the wide fireplace and give a unique effect to the tall Colonial mantel on which is beautifully carved in old English, Bobby Burns' famous "Selkirk grace:"

Some hae meat that canna eat
And some wad eat that want it;
But we hae meat and we can eat
Sae let the Lord be thankit.

An old Dutch latticed door is surmounted by a splendid Paller panel of Cupids, and near by stands a tall, handsome treasure laden Dutch cabinet of antique workmanship.

The entire first floor of the admirably arranged house, which on this floor really forms one great apartment, is exquisitely appointed with fine old carved furniture, picked up here and there by General and Mrs. Ford during their travels in Europe, and nearly every chair and table and cabinet has an interesting history. At the head of the alcoved corridor is a tall, beautiful old Dutch clock, superbly carved, as also is the long, low book case which runs half the length of the library, and on the fine white mantel is finely carved in old English a quotation from Thackeray. Some rare specimens of old candlesticks and lanterns, curiously wrought, add to the interesting treasures Mr. Ford has collected for his charming house. Almost every one of the doors, and even the quaint, musty cupboard, has a history.

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

FROM SWIFT'S BARNSTABLE FAMILIES.

Thomas Lewes (4) came over with his father when a child of four years, residing about three years in Plymouth, then removed with his father to Scituate, and from thence to Barnstable in 1639. His education was obtained in the new settlements, before public schools had been established. Generally the children of the first comers were better educated than the succeeding generations. The ministers of religion had, at that time, small parishes and smaller salaries, and necessity compelled them to resort to other employment. Many of the early pastors were physicians, and nearly all of them taught a school in the winter, and cultivated their farms in the summer. All of of George Lewes's children excepting George were well educated for the times.

Thomas Lewes resided in Barnstable till 1668, for he was in June that year qualified as one of the surveyors of highways. In 1654, the year after his marriage, he owned the easterly part of his houselot (v. p. 182, Vol. VIII) adjoining the lot of John Davis, "Quinque Die, April 1656" he bought for £20 the ancient tavern and twelve acre houselot of Thomas Lumbart, Senior, founded westerly by the lot of Mr. Robert Linnell, northerly by the harbor, and easterly by the lands of Thomas and Joseph Lothrop. This old tavern, the first built in Barnstable, stood on the houselot now owned by the heirs of Ezra Crowell, He had not sold this estate in April, 1661. June 1, 1658, he was admitted a freeman of the colony, and his name is on the lists of the freemen of Barnstable, up to June 4, 1686, when Suckenesset was incorporated as a town.

He was not one of the original proprietors of Suckenesset, and was not admitted an inhabitant resident in that plantation till 1668. He was clerk of the proprietors from July 1685 to March 26, 1691, and probably for a much longer period. July 23, 1677, he had lands allotted to him at Little Neck near Wood's Hole. On that lot he had a dwelling house, which he sold with the land, Feb'y 25, 1689-90, to Jonathan Hatch, Senior, of "Sackenesset," for "ten shillings in the silver money." The deed is in the handwriting of "Thomas Lewes, Senior," witnessed by "Samuel Ganson and Matthew Price" and was acknowledged before Col. John Thatcher of Yarmouth, justice of the peace, Dec. 17, 1763, nearly fourteen years after it was dated. The lot is described as No. 4 of the Little Neck lots, and as extending "across the Neck to the Great Harbour, so called."

The handwriting indicates that he was a ready penman, and it can be easily read by persons familiar with manuscripts of that date. Few errors occur in the spelling, and the conditions of the grant are clearly stated. In this deed he writes his name Lewes, and his son James, and Benjamin of Falmouth, in a deed dated Oct. 17, 1700, spell their names in the same manner.

ROBERT LEWIS, Gloucester-co., Va.

CHAPTER LXXXVII.

From the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography.

The assertion that the immigrant ancestor, was "General Robert Lewis," settled in Gloucester, about 1645, and had two sons, John and William, and also had grants of thousands of acres there, seems to be firmly fixed in the minds of the family. This account has been challenged so often that it seems hardly worth while to do so again, but it is perhaps best to once more make the effort. There is absolutely no proof from the records (for the family have nothing but tradition in regard to him), to show the existence of any "General Robert Lewis;" and the only evidence of the existence of any Robert Lewis at that period (for there are no grants to him) is that in 1656, when Mary, widow of Robert Lewis, was about to marry again, the court of York county ordered that his land, which was on Poropitank Creek, in the present Gloucester, be given to his two children, Mary and Alice. The terms of the order would imply that they were his only children. In 1653, Mr. John Lewis was granted 250 acres on Poropitank Creek, and the headrights were John Lewis, Lidia Lewis (probably his wife), Edward Lewis and John Lewis, Jr. John Lewis Jr. had a grant in Gloucester in 1655; Major William Lewis patented 2000 acres in New Kent in 1655, and another tract in Gloucester in 1654. Major John Lewis who was living in Gloucester in 1675, is styled Colonel John Lewis in 1680. This is all the authentic information we have seen in regard to the early history of the Lewis family of Gloucester, except that the epitaph of John Lewis, Esq., of the Council, at Warner Hall (v p 11, Vol. V), shows that he was the son of John and Isabella Lewis. John Lewis the father, was probably the John Lewis Jr., of the patents, and the Major or Colonel John Lewis of 1675 and 1680; and if this is so the first grant cited above would indicate that he was the son of a John Lewis, whom the grant shows was an immigrant. We should be glad to see the early history of this family clearly traced.

Wedding Bells.

WHITE-LEWIS.

The marriage of Mr. James McKenny White of New York to Miss Ella Johnson Lewis, in Grace Episcopal Church at Berryville, Va., on Wednesday June 1, 1898, was a brilliant social event. The bride is a social favorite, and is distingnished as the great-great granddaughter of of Betty Washington, sister of George Washington. She is a daughter of the late George Washington Lewis of Clarke county and niece of the late Col. E. P. C. Lewis, of Hoboken, N. J., ex-Minister to Portugal. Miss Louise Travers Lewis, the bride's sister was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Edward Nichols White of Baltimore, his best man. The ushers were Rider Henry, Robert Henry, T. VanWyck Dubois, and C. F. and W. F. Talliferro of New York, and W. T. Lewis of Berryville. Miss Emily Conte McCormick and Master George Washington Lewis were flower bearers. Mr. Edward A. Stevens, of Hoboken, brother-in-law of the bride, gave her away.

The groom is a native of Baltimore, and son of James McKenny White, of that city. For some time he has been living in New York. [George Washington Lewis (136) v p 137 Vol. IV. Ed.]

CUMMING-LEWIS.

Miss Julia Stevens Lewis was married to James Millar Cumming in Trinity Church, Hoboken, at noon Saturday June 4, 1898. The bride who is a daughter of the late Col. E. P. C. Lewis, formerly Minister to Portugal, a granddaughter of Mrs. Archibald Alexander, and a niece of Mrs. Edwin A. Stevens of Castle Point, was given away by her brother Edwin A. S Lewis. Her sister, Miss Eleanor Parke Custis Lewis acted as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were, Miss Mary Garnett, half sister of the bride; Miss Alice Stuart Walker of Morristown, Miss Mary Stevens of Hoboken, Miss Elise Coppee Mitchell of Bethlehem, Pa., Miss Harriet Livermore Griffin of Buffalo, Miss Esther Lewis of Berryville, Va., and Miss Dillie Fleming of Newark. The best man was Samuel A. Clarke, and Theodosius Stevens and James F. Lewis of Hoboken, and Percy Ballantine, Robert Ballantine and Edward H. Wright of Newark were the ushers. Mr. Cumming is the son of Robert Cumming of Newark, N. J., formerly of Largs-on-the-Clyde, Scotland. [Julia Stevens Lewis (149) v p 138 Vol. IV. Ed.]

CHAPTER XVIII.

By C. J. H. Woodbury, Lynn, Mass.

From an address delivered Nov. 21,

1892 at the presentation to the City of Lynn of the first casting made in America.

A few months ago I learned that Messrs. Arthur and Llewellyn Lewis, (v p 9 Vol.IV), the owners of the kettle well known as being the first casting made at the Saugus Iron Works, were seriously considering the acceptance of one of several offers recently made for its purchase; and as it appeared to me that this article, which was the precursor of the vast iron industry in America, should be kept at Lynn, where it properly belonged as a relic most closely affiliated with the early history of our town, I at once purchased the kettle.

As the kettle is an example of the state of the art of iron founding in 1642, so the tablet forming the rear of the case in which the kettle is placed for safe preservation, is also typical of the skill of American foundrymen in 1892.

It forms the back of a glass case, in the middle of which the kettle is hung from a small crane projecting diagonally from one side of the tablet.

The kettle weighs two pounds and four ounces and holds nearly a quart.

The tablet bears the following inscription.

THE FIRST CASTING MADE IN AMERICA.
SAUGUS IRON WORKS
1642.
PRESENTED TO THE CITY OF LYNN
BY JOHN E. HUDSON,
A DESCENDANT OF
THOMAS HUDSON,
THE OWNER OF THE SITE OF THE
IRON WORKS, TO WHOM THE FIRST CASTING WAS GIVEN.
THIS CASE PRESENTED BY CITIZENS OF LYNN.
1892.

It may be very naturally asked what is the evidence warranting the presumption that this kettle is as claimed, the first casting made at the Saugus Iron Works.

His father was born in Wales and d. on the Atlantic Ocean. He was a sea-captain; his vessel was wrecked and all hands were lost about 1754; he had one brother who settled in Halifax, N. S. and another in N. Y. or Va.

CHAPTER II.

From the Portland, Me. Weekly Express.

Archelaus Lewis (1) was b. in Berwick, Feb. 15, 1753. He came to Falmouth before the war of the Revolution and was one of the sergeants in Capt. John Brackett's company which started for Boston, July 3d, 1775. He was ensign in 1776, lieutenant in 1777 and at the time of his resignation, Feb. 20, 1779 he was adjutant of Col. Vose's Regiment. In 1801 he represented Falmouth in the General Court. He lived in Strondwater, in a house yet standing on the top of a hill on Reform School road. Early in the present century, he removed to a large farm in that part of Westbrook then known as Congin, and occupied the brick house on the Windham road. His homestead included the water power and a large portion of the Cumberland Mills land.

CHARLES LEWIS, 1740, Virginia.

CHAPTER I.

By Lewis D. Fort, New Orleans, La.

One of my strongest motives for preparing this record for LEWISIANA of the descendants of Colonel Charles Lewis of Virginia, has been the hope that through its publication I might learn his ancestry and the record of his life and services.

Col. Charles Lewis (1) of Va., b. about 1740, was one of a family of several children whose names are unknown to the writer. His wife was a dau. of Gilly Grew Marion of Wiltsshire-co., England, a descendant of the Duke of Sutherland. Another dau. m. Governor Nicholas of Virginia. Col. Charles Lewis had several children, the eldest of whom,

2.1. Gilly Marion m. (1) Mary Cannon, m. (2) widow Ryan nee Martha Rose, dau. of Col. Peter and Mary (Nicholas) Rose of Seven Islands, Va., and gr. dau. of Bishop Robert Rose of London, and his wife Miss Fitzhugh of Va.

Nuts to Crack.

The name Lewis as a first name sometimes is a family name more often not, but when used as a middle name usually means kinship with some Lewis line. Which one is the question? With this object in view, the following lists are given.

Thomas Lewis Preston, planter, b. in Botetourt-co., Va., Nov. 28, 1812.

Hilborne Lewis Roosevelt, organbuilder, b. N. Y. City, Dec. 21, 1849, d. there Dec. 30, 1886.

John Lewis Roth, b. 1773, d. 1841, the first white male child born in Ohio.

William Lewis Sharkey, senator, b. in Mussel Shoals, Tenn., in 1797, d. Washington, D. C. Apr. 29, 1873.

John Lewis Shreck, missionary, b. Alexandria, Va., Sept. 4, 1812, d. Barnwell, S. C. Aug. 20, 1863.

Morgan Lewis Smith, soldier, b. Oswego-co., N. Y., Mar. 8, 1822, d. Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 29, 1871.

William Lewis Stoughton, lawyer, b. N. Y., Mar. 20, 1827, d. Sturgis, Mich., June 6, 1888.

Edward Lewis Sturtevant, agriculturist, b. Boston, Mass., Jany. 23, 1842.

Record of Life.

MARRIAGES.

At New Haven, Ct., May 25, 1898, Dwight Watson Lewis (252 XIII v. p. 181, Vol. VIII) and Mrs. Eutoka E. French.

In Syracuse, N. Y., Dr. Henry M. Lewis of New York City and Laura A. Betts.

At Chicago, Ills., at the South Congregational church by the Rev. Dr. Willard Scott, George Ely Van Hagen and Wakefield only dau. of Mr. and Mrs. John Calvin Lewis, 4140 Ellis-ave. Charles Rae Lewis, brother of the bride, was best man.

DEATHS.

In Newark, N. J., Police Sergeant Henry Lewis. Sergeant Lewis was born in Ellisburg, N. Y., on Dec. 15, 1842. He shipped in the navy at Buffalo in 1861 and was sent to this city, where he joined the Penguin and served out the war on that vessel and the Huntsville. He was discharged as boatswain. Altogether he spent ten years as a sailor, and was appointed on the Newark police force in 1871. He leaves one daughter.

In Lorain, O. Feb. 28, 1896, Edwin Lewis, miller, at the Lorain Flouring Mills, was killed, by falling from a plank on which he was standing while oiling some shafting in the fourth story of the mill.

In Springfield, Mass., Aug. 11, 1896, from sunstroke, Charles H. Lewis ae. 42 an expressman. He left a wife and child.

Clippings.

The Lewis range finder is one of the greatest inventions of the age in regard to controlling the aiming of a heavy coast defence gun. It is the invention of Lieutenant Isaac N. Lewis a Kansan by birth. He was graduated at West Point in 1884, and has until recently served with the Second artillery. His invention cannot be too highly praised for the good work it is doing.

Ray R. Lewis, proprietor of the Whitney's Point meat market, may be counted among the successful young business men of the place. The new market is a model of neatness, and it is always well stocked. Mr. Lewis is the eldest son of George F. Lewis, of Maine. He was born at Union, October 22, 1869, and much of his early life was spent at Union and Maine. He first worked for Frank Thorne, in the market at Union, then bought him out and ran the place for a year, after which he sold out and came to Whitney's Point, buying the market there.

Eugene L. Lewis is now the Chief of Cincinnati's Shriners. By their unanimous voice that honor went to him in Dec. 1897. No one worthier could have been chosen for it. Mr. Lewis stood next in succession among the officers of Syrian Temple, and when Potentate W. B. Melish signified his intention to serve no longer in the position Mr. Lewis was naturally looked to as his sucessor. Various other gentlemen were suggested in the same connection, but when the members of the Shrine came together at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, the feeling was so overwhelmingly for him, that other candidates, if there had been any, were dropped, and Mr. Lewis' election was made by acclamation. It was without a dissenting vote, and the result was greeted with cheers.

[Mr. Lewis is County Auditor and very popular.]

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CXXX.

FROM SWIFT'S BARNSTABLE FAMILIES.

George Lewes (5) was a planter, and resided in the East Parish of Barnstable. He was not so well educated as the others of the family, and had not the active business capacity of his brother James or Thomas; yet he was honest and industrious, a good neighbor, and a worthy member of the church. His house stood on the south side of the highway, on the lot of land recently owned by Mr. Daniel Cobb, deceased. His homelot, containing five acres, with a barn standing thereon, he bought Sept. 10, 1656, of Barnard and Joshua Lumbard. It was bounded north by the highway, east by the great lot of Thomas Lumbard, south and west by the land of Barnard Lumbard. This was originally the land of Joshua Lumbard.

His farm was on the north side of the road. In 1654 he had sixteen acres bounded west by the road to the new common field, north partly by the land of Goodman Wells, and the Indian reservation, and easterly by the land of Thomas Huckins, at the "Horse Prison," so called.

May 19, 1656, he bought for £20 the dwelling-house and sixteen acres of land of Robert Shelley, bounded east by the road to the new common field, south by the highway, west by the Dimmock farm, and north by the land of Goodman Isaac Wells. By the purchase of the Shelley estate his farm extended on the County road from a point a little east of the present dwelling house of Mr. W. W. Sturgis to the Horse Prison, which stood near the dwelling-house of Edward Gorham, deceased.

Beside the above he owned two lots of three acres each at Sandy Neck, and his share in the common lands. Jan. 16, 1683, he sold one-half of one of the above lots at Sandy Neck to his brother James for one good cow, meadow then being more highly valued than at present.

CHAPTER XIX.

By C. J. H. Woodbury, Lynn, Mass.

(Concluded from p 12 Vol. IX.)

The design of the kettle is that of a type used in the earliest colonial days, but in its physical characteristics it bears evidence of being made of iron cast directly from the ore as reduced in a blast furnace, and not from pig iron remelted in a reverbratory or a cupola furnace: and there is no evidence or reason to believe that there was either of these furnaces at the Saugus Iron Works.

Thomas Hudson owned sixty acres of land on the westerly bank of the Saugus River, at the present sites of Scott's and of Pranker's mills, and he sold this land to a Company of Undertakers for the Iron Works. He claimed in consideration the first article made at the works, and although not given to idealisms, this kettle was kept by him and his descendants in the male line for over a century, when it passed in the fourth generation to Mary (Hudson) Lewis [v Zachariah (46) p 104 Vol. III] who gave it to her daughter, Mary Lewis, and she in turn gave it to her nephews, Arthur and Llewellyn Lewis, from whom the purchase was made.

These two brothers well remember the story of the kettle as told by their grandmother, who prized this kettle as an heirloom, whose history had in a like manner, been related to her by her grand parents.

The Saugus Iron works were such an important factor in the inception and early development of American industries that their early history merits due consideration. This was not the first attempt in iron-smelting but the first success.

* * * * * *

The immediate return to those engaged in the enterprise is now of little moment, but the results to the whole Colony of an establishment which attracted, developed and then scattered a body of skilled mechanics were of great importance and no doubt may have been an essential factor in rearing many prominent industries.

The grass-covered mounds of ashes and dross along the banks of the Saugus River are the only vestige of those busy works, and serve as a uninscribed monument to the mechanical pioneers of America.

JOSEPH LEWIS, Swansea, Mass.

CHAPTER XXII.

By Prof. James Lewis Howe, Lexington, Va.

Who was the father of Joseph Lewis of Swansea? This question has given rise to much discussion in the pages of our LEWISIANA and while it has seemed easy to say who was not his father, little evidence has been brought forward to show who his father was. I dislike to thresh over old grain, but I have waited many months for the promised credenda that he was not the son of George Lewis of Barnstable, but as far as I have been able to gather the evidence is wholly negative and resolves itself into three specifications, (1) Savage does not mention Joseph as one of George's sons; (2) George does not name Joseph in his will; (3) after Joseph was killed in the Swansea massacre, which may now be regarded as proven (v p 184 Vol. VIII) his widow went to Malden and not to Barnstable where her father-in-law (?) lived.

On the other side is Deane's History of Scituate which makes Joseph the son of George. The authority for this statement of Deane, I have never seen given. The evidence on which Benjamin Lewis, with Joseph his father and Joseph his grandfather was for a time merged into Book XXIV in LEWISIANA was a genealogy compiled by my grandfather James Lewis (Book XLII,62). This genealogy was prepared about the time Deane's History was written; the original manuscript does not show whether just before or after. So it must remain a question whether Deane was his authority, or vice versa, or whether both obtained their data from the same source. James Lewis was a careful and painstaking lawyer, distinguished for his accuracy, and in the genealogy of his branch of the Lewis Family and in that of his wife's branch of the Parker Family compiled at the same time, there has been no statement called in question save this one regarding the children of George Lewis. This statement cannot be overthrown by negative evidence of the character thus far offered, indeed it must stand until positive evidence is produced showing that George Lewis did not have a son Joseph, or that Joseph Lewis of Swansea did have some other father than George. For a while some supposed that Joseph was the son of Edmund of Lynn (Book XXXIII) and then that he was the son of John of Malden (Book XXXVI). These views, I have been privately informed, have been abandoned. The only chances left for him would be to be the son of William of Roxbury (!) (Book XLIV) or to have emigrated directly from England or Wales.

CHAPTER XVI.

From Kansas City Times.

Thomas Lewis, (33 v. p. 138, Vol. VIII) has the distinction of being the second oldest citizen of Kansas City. Although he will be 90 years old on the 9th of next July, he announces, with not a little degree of pride, that he still reads and writes without the aid of spectacles.

Only a few months ago he retired from active business pursuits, never before having taken a vacation, and now he sits among his books, but finds his greatest pleasure in indulging in reminiscences of the past, when he was an intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln, and when he was struggling to win for himself success in the mercantile world.

There are few lines of business in which Thomas Lewis, at one time or another in his life, has not engaged. Apprenticed in his boyhood to the trade of a shoemaker, he has been successively the proprietor of a general store, a manufacturer, lawyer, mill builder and real estate dealer. He has founded a number of corporations, and has been the financial genius of banking, railroad, mining and publishing enterprises.

In the last 70 years of his life he has never indulged in the use of either liquor or tobacco. During 60 years he devoted every day an average of 16 hours of the 24 to business or reading.

"I am a lineal descendant of Edward Doty, who was a passenger on the Mayflower when it landed at Plymouth in November, 1620." said Mr. Lewis, "My grandmother, Anna Doty, was his great granddaughter."

"I was born in Bernards township, Somerset county, N. J., on July 9th, 1808. There I cast my first presidential vote, for Andrew Jackson, in 1828, when Jackson received all the votes of the township except four that were cast for J. Q. Adams. I have always been a Jacksonian democrat.

In 1806 he owned a farm and tannery (near Morristown I believe). In November 1809, he started for Ohio with all his possessions, reaching there in 1810. Cincinnati then had but 2500 inhabitants and one brick house which was on the corner of 5th and Main-sts. He settled in Butler Co. On the 12th of February, 1813 he volunteered in the army and was appointed adjutant 1st Reg., 3d Brigade of the 1st Div. Ohio Vols. under Gen. Harrison; was in Ft. Meggs during both sieges and at the Thames in Canada which ended the war in the north-west.

It was a wilderness from Detroit to Dayton and the day he started home he was taken sick and had to be held on his horse by two men for six days and when he got home he was insensible and continued so for six weeks, and it was two years before he was able to work. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and of the Masonic order.

CHAPTER XXVI.

By Ellis S. Lewis, York, Pa.

It may not be out of place to state at the outset, that I can vouch for the absolute accuracy of the following corrections and additional items to the records of our line. I have a great mass of information which I hope to get into shape for Lewisiana at an early date.

Ellis Lewis (52) son of Ellis Lewis (1) emigrated from Chester Co., Pa., to York Co., Pa., in the year 1735, instead of the various other dates mentioned in previous communications. He died either the last week of December 1794, or early in Jany. 1795, instead of Feby. 1795. He is buried in the old Quaker burying place in Newberrytown, York Co. Pa., also his wife Ruth Wilson. His will is dated Dec. 28, 1794 instead of 1791 as published.

Eli Lewis (2) was born Jany. 31, 1750 instead of 1756, and died Feby. 1, 1807, Sunday morning. (after a short illness) instead of Feby. 2, 1807 as published. He is buried in the old Quaker burying place in Newberrytown, York Co., Pa., also his wife Pamela Webster Lewis.

Webster Lewis (3) died May 28, 1832 instead of 1830. He married July 25, 1798 [Mary Nebinger, oldest daughter of Dr. George Nebinger (a physician in the Revolutionary Army) and Ann Rankin, instead of the various dates heretofore published. Ann Rankin was a descendant of John Rankin and Joseph Dennett, who with Ellis Lewis (52) were the first settlers in the northern portion of York Co., Pa.

Robert N. Lewis (29) married Mary Moore born Feby. 28, 1801 instead of 1800. She was a daughter of John Moore and Sarah Pugh.

Phoebe Lewis (27) married ——Liggit and died Oct. 12, 1810. She is buried in the old Quaker burying place at Newberytown, York Co., Pa.

Eli Lewis (5) of Eli Lewis (2) born Sept. 30, 1789 instead of Jany. 3, 1796, and died May 4, 1867, instead of May 6, 1867. Buried in Prospect Hill Cemetery, York, Pa.

James Lewis (6) of Eli Lewis (2) was born Jany. 3, 1796, instead of 1795, died Nov. 16, 1845, instead of Nov. 18, 1845. Buried in the church yard of the First Presbyterian church, York, Pa.

Ellis Lewis (7) died March 19, 1871, instead of March 20, 1871.

Juliet Lewis (83) of Eli Lewis (2) was born Jany. 13, 1792 and died Feby. 13, 1793.

Juliet Lewis (84) of Eli Lewis (2) was born May 8, 1794 and died in childhood. Both buried in the Newberrytown Quaker burying place.

DEATHS.

Ivy, Va. April 14, 1898.—The remains of the late John M. Lewis were interred in St. Paul's cemetery this afternoon at 4 o'clock; the service being conducted by the rector.

During the whole of his long life Mr. Lewis resided in the neighborhood in which he first saw the light of day, with the exception of four years spent in the army as a member of Ashby's command, serving with great gallantry throughout that memorable struggle. For the past thirty years he has been a magistrate in his section, no one opposing him at the election. Always an ardent Democrat, he declined to accept a proffered political position of great honor at the hands of a party at one time in the control of the State.

For thirty-five years he was a member of the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal church, at Ivy, and no man in the community stood higher in the regard of his neighbors. His popularity was attested in a large measure by the almost constant stream of friends who have called almost daily since he was stricken.

Mr. Lewis is survived by five sons and one daughter—Mrs. Winston Garth of Albemarle, Messrs. Thomas F. and Walter J. Lewis of Texas, John M. Lewis, Jr., of Norfolk and William H. and Howell C. Lewis of Charlottesville.

Southbury, Ct., June 9, 1898—The remains of Benjamin F. Lewis who died in St. Louis, Mo., arrived here on Monday evening, accompanied by his daughter and infant grandchild. The interment was in Pine Hill cemetery, in his lot where his first wife was buried, on Tuesday forenoon, Rev. W. H. Barrows conducting a short service. The friends recognized the familiar look on the face of the departed although he has been away from this place over thirty years. Mr. Lewis had been sick with a lingering disease and he enjoined it upon his daughter that his remains might be brought to the place of his birth and laid near his father and mother, which duty she sacredly performed. Mr. Lewis was son of Isaac and Eliza Treadwell Lewis, who owned the place now occupied by David Smith, where he carried on his trade for a number of years. Of their family of ten children seven survive, Justin in Kansas; Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Seward in Bridgeport; Wm. F. and Robert in Watertown; Monroe in Pennsylvania and Everett in New York. He leaves a wife and five children. His age was 65 years.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

JOHN LEWIS, Westerly, R. I.

CHAPTER CCLXXX.

From New Haven, Ct., Register.

A PEACE GENERAL.

There are two kinds of generals in this country. Those who teach the enemy that it cannot tread upon our preserves in safety, and those who teach our children the elementary lessons in education, by means of which they are fitted to take their places in the world as good citizens and just men. It will not do to forget the latter because at present the former occupy the foreground in the panorama of current events. Yesterday an experienced teacher in the school district of New Haven completed the fortieth successive year in our public schools. During that long and active career, thousands of children, many of whom now have children of their own in the public schools, have come under the influence of his character and personality. From him they have received the first principles of knowledge, the initial insight into the mysteries of fact and fancy, and the first equipment which mustered them into the service of their state as citizens, to whom are given by the constitution the rights and privileges of a political and religious freedom. He has never tired in his labors. They have been ceaseless and successful. Men have come and gone, the battles of knowledge have laid many low, but he has gone steadily on until he has seen the fortieth year closed upon his labors, with more years of usefulness ahead of him. It has not been a career that has brought him a world wide reputation and the thanks of Congress. There are no medals hanging from his waistcoat. He lives to-day as he lived twenty-five years ago, before and since, a modest, thoroughly efficient, patient and successful teacher of the young. Not so brilliant a career, after all, some scoffer may say? No, not so brilliant as the career of men whose lines are cast in more conspicuous places, but none the less splendid in its achievements than the best of things done by man. It is a career blessed by the appreciation and respect of thousands, which has to sweeten and strengthen it the highest consciousness that comes to man, the knowledge of a duty well done. Such a one is John G. Lewis, the principal of the Webster school district. We beg to compliment him, and to offer him the assurances of our most respectful consideration upon the occasion of his anniversary. [v John Gardner (438) Lewis p 76 Vol. III.—Ed.]

CHAPTER CXXXII.

From Timlow's History of Southington, Conn.

Record of ch. of Lemuel Lewis (156 v p 52 Vol. VII.)

Mereb (964) m Apr. 8, 1786, Dr. Josiah Root b Dec. 17, 1752, at Southington, d June 6, 1841, (she d Mar. 11, 1841) son of Josiah and Keziah (Smith) Root. Entering the revolutionary army as surgeon's mate, he was promoted to the position of Apothecary General, and for a time was stationed at New York. Returning home he engaged in general practice in Hamden, but was located in Southington in 1805 where he died.

Dr. Root was a man of good abilities and had a disposition that made him very popular. Never lacking in material for a good story, his company was much sought by the young who listened with delight to his conversations. He was never irritated unless some one reflected upon his skill while in the army. Generally there was no bounds to his humor. Although not always up to the style in dress nor measured in speech, his society was generally courted in the town. His easy way of disposing of business did not help him as an economist. But few persons could draw about them more friends. 8 ch b.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

FROM ANDERSON'S HISTORY OF WATERBURY, CT.

Ame (44 v p 44 Vol. I) b May 24, 1751, dau. of John (11) and Amy (Smith) Lewis, m Silas Constant who d Mar. 22, 1825, at Yorktown, N. Y. Pastor of 1st Presbyterian church.

Rev. Silas Constant is said to have been "son of Col. Joseph Constant, an officer of the French Army, who m in Mar. 1819, Susan Terrell, dau. of Elijah of Salem. Soon after this marriage Col. Constant sailed for France to arrange his affairs. The vessel on which he sailed was never heard from and Mrs. Constant died soon after the birth of Silas in Waterbury, bequeathing him to the care of her sister, who had married a Beebe." Although Silas Constant's name appears frequently on our records and his birth is recorded with the family of Jonathan Beebe, there is no hint of his relationship to the family. Beebe's will—which he did not sign—gives "to Silas Constant £50 when he becomes of age." No Elijah Terrell has been found at Salem nor at Waterbury. It is said "he married in 1770 Amy Lewis his second cousin." Mrs. Jonathan Beebe and John Lewis were second cousins. After his 30th year he became a minister. He probably studied under the direction of Rev. Jacob Green of Hanover, N. J., and was ordained May 29, 1783. He preached in various places in New Jersey until Nov. 8, 1785, when he removed to Yorktown, and remained pastor of the Presbyterian church for nearly forty years.

CHAPTER CXXXIII.

FROM SWIFT'S BARNSTABLE FAMILIES.

When a lad James (6) Lewes was bound an apprentice to a blacksmith, and in after life, when he had become a distinguished man, he thought it was not derogatory to his character to blow the bellows, or swing the hammer. He was industrious and frugal. When he could not earn a shilling he was content if he earned a penny which he put to a good use. By careful management he accumulated a good estate.

In 1655 his houselot, containing twelve acres, was the lot on the west of Taylor's lane. It remains very nearly in the same condition that it was in 1655. The successive owners have been James Lewes (6), his son George Lewes (13), who bequeathed it to his daughter Mercy Taylor (88), and she to her daughter Alice, wife of the late Captain Isaac Bacon. From him it passed into the hands of Mr. Williams of Boston, in payment of a debt of Isaac Bacon, Jr. Williams sold it to the late David Crocker, Esq.

James (6) in 1678, was the owner of all the land between Taylor's lane and the Hyannis road, excepting the lands of John Davis on the southwest corner.

In 1655 he owned three acres of planting land in the old common field, and three acres of meadow on Sandy Neck. Jan'y 29, 1667-8. three acres of land on the south of his houselot was granted to him by the town. Subsequently he purchased other real estate. At the division of the common lands in 1703, he was entitled to 48½ shares, considerably more than an average. He had then distributed a large part of his estate to his children.

In 1655 his house was on the lot adjoining Taylor's Lane. By the purchase of the Hallett lands he became possessed of John Hathaway's house, which stood on a cross road now discontinued, and the ancient Roger Goodspeed house. This house (which he probably occupied in 1686) is now standing, if it be justifiable so to speak of a building that has suffered so many transformations.

Lieut. James Lewes (6), was admitted a freeman of the Colony June 1, 1658. His name often appears as a juror, and surveyor of highways. He was lieutenant of the military company of Barnstable many years, and propably a soldier in Philip's war, for his heirs were proprietors of Gorham town. He was one of the Selectmen in 1679, '81, '89 and '90.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THE LEWIS MURAL TABLET.

A memorial which has just been completed and will shortly be erected in the Parish Church of St. George, Flushing, L. I., vividly recalls the stirring times of the birth of American independence. About one year ago an antiquated, moth-eaten manuscript was discovered in the garret of the old Jaggar House, 111 Sanford avenue, Flushing, which is now occupied by Captain F. A. Hinman. By the fortunate discovery of this long lost link in the history of the parish another record of national interest was also secured; for in the musty pages of the book was found the signature of Francis Lewis, who signed the Declaration of American Independence, and also a record of the parish, covering a period of seventy-five years. Lewis was at that time church warden of St. George's parish and a resident of the Town of Flushing, where he had settled after a stormy life of adventure.

*** ***

As a reward for his services (in the French and Indian War) he received a grant of five thousand acres of land from the British government, and in 1765 he bought a tract of 200 acres, now known as Whitestone in the township of Flushing, where he built a substantial residence. About this time of life he became church warden of St. George's Church, Flushing, which office he held for three years. He was also a member of the famous Committee of One Hundred of the State of New York, and in 1775 was sent to the continental congress at Philadelphia.

JOSEPH LEWIS, Swansea, Mass.

CHAPTER XXIV.

By Prof. James Lewis Howe, Lexington, Va.

(concluded from last issue.)

The record as given in the genealogy compiled by James Lewis is

"Joseph Lewis, son of George Lewis and Sarah Jenkins, was born at Barnstable 1647. He removed to Swansey with his brothers Thomas and Nathaniel about 1670. He married Mary Jones, June 13, 1671, and was killed by the Indians at a massacre in the town of Swansey at the commencement of King Phillip's War. His body was found and buried June 24, 1675."

It will be noted that the latter part of this statement has just been confirmed from the Plymouth Colony Records (v p 184 Vol. VIII.).

Incidentally this record brings up the question of Thomas and Nathaniel. Of the latter this genealogy says "Nathaniel, son of George, born at Barnstable 1645, removed to Swansey, died Oct. 13, 1683."

If "the evidence is conclusive" that Thomas Lewis of Swansea was a son of Edmund of Lynn, what about "his brothers" Nathaniel and Joseph? Or were they not his brothers? Or were there two Thomases? And where was Thomas the unquestioned son of George from 1670 to 1677? The burden of proof seems to lie wholly with those who dispute the statements of Deane.

CHAPTER XXV.

From Greenleaf Genealogy.

On the 24th of June was shed the first English blood in what was afterwards called Philip's War.

On that day nine Englishmen were murdered in Swanzy by the Indians as they were returning from the meetinghouse, it being the day appointed as a day of humiliation and prayer throughout Plymouth County, who being thus unexpectedly involved in trouble sent to the other colonies for for assistance. August 5th Stephen Greenleaf and others from Newbury, Mass., with fourteen days provisions marched against the Indians. (Town Records.)"

CHAPTER XXVI.

By H. F. Ryther, Newport, Vt.

The Will of "Hannah Lewis, widow of Joseph Lewis, late of Wilmington," named her son Benjamin as Executor. His Bond filed with the will says "Benjamin Lewis of Billerica having taken upon him the office of Executor of the last will and testament of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Lewis, late of Wilmington." This proves from Benjamin (1) of Billerica back to Joseph (74 v p 137 Vol. VIII) of Wilmington. Mass., Rec. Vol. 2, p 556, "Parts of Reading and Woburn established as Wilmington, Sept. 25, 1730. This accounts for apparent removals about that time v p 104 Vol. V.

Obadiah Jenkins, Jr., (v p 88 Vol. VII) d. in Malden Feb'y 4, 1762. The Judges Decree of Distribution of the Estate dated Apr. 12, 1768 assigned the property to Joseph Jenkins of Wilmington, and ordered him to pay to the legal Heirs [27 in all, and all children of his 7 brothers and sisters] the sums herein ordered:

To the Children of the said Intestates Brother Joseph, Deceased, viz.: Benjamin, Joseph and Abigail, Each nine Pounds, etc. To the children of the said Intestates Sister Sibilla, Deceased viz. Samuel & Sibilla, Each thirteen Pounds, ten Shillings, etc. Filed with the Probate papers is this explanation: Deacon Saml. Howards mother was Sister of the Deceased by his mother's side i. e. Obadiah's Mother, before she married his Father, married a Lewis & had 2 Children, viz. Joseph & Sibilla, which Sibilla was mother to the said Saml. Howard who claims Joseph was Father to Benj. Lewis, who also claims, Sibilla's Children are the said

Samuel and Sibilla. Joseph's Children are Benj., Joseph and Abigail.

Was this the Joseph of Woburn and Wilmington? His children were Hannah, Mary, Benjamin, Joseph, Abigail and John. The first two died before 1751, and the last before 1764, leaving Benjamin, Joseph and Abigail, just the three named in the above distribution. This proves that Mary Jenkins of Malden had a son Joseph Lewis, and very nearly if not quite that Joseph of Woburn and Wilmington was that son.

CHAPTER XIX.

FROM KANSAS CITY TIMES.

It was in Springfield, Ill., that Thomas Lewis (33 v.p. 27 Vol. IX) first made the acquaintance of Abraham Lincoln, then a struggling young lawyer. The friendship arising between the young merchant and the man destined to rise to the highest office in the gift of the American people was continued in bonds of the closest intimacy until the tragic death of the president. It is the proudest boast of Thomas Lewis that he often championed the cause of Abraham Lincoln when the latter was laying siege to the heart of Mary Todd.

"Mary was a good deal as other young girls have been before her and probably always will be," said Mr. Lewis, while a merry twinkle lighted up his eyes. "She had an ideal, and Lincoln fell farthest short of it of any man in the world, but when she announced one day to my wife and me that she had determined, when she was a little lass, that she would never marry unless she could marry a handsome man, but that it seemed to be her fate to marry the homeliest man in the world we knew then that handsome Mary Todd was to be Lincoln's wife."

When he was in business in Springfield Mr. Lewis bought his stock in eastern cities, traveling by stage to Pittsburg, where he bought glassware. In Baltimore he bought sheetings, in Philadelphia prints, and the finer goods in New York.

As a real estate dealer he has owned in New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas and Indiana over 10,000 acres of land, and more than 3000 city and town lots, and he boasts that he never sold an acre or a lot at less than cost.

With two partners he at one time owned the Springfield Daily Union Herald. Subsequently he published the Cairo Daily Democrat, the Volksblat for Cairo and Springfield and a ladies' monthly magazine.

As an administrator, executor or guardian he has settled nearly 100 estates, and says that never a complaint was made regarding his methods.

The ambition of this hale and hearty nonagenarian is yet to realize the dream of his life and become a lawyer. He has practiced law as an office adviser, but owing to an impediment in his speech, which was not cured until he was 35 years of age, he was prevented from undertaking work in the courts.

Lewis RoBards (12) the records at Washington show that he was Captain in the Revolutionary army throughout the war for the American independence. He moved to the County of Kentucky when the limits of Virginia reached to the Mississippi river. His first wife eloped with Andrew Jackson, a lawyer, and for that cause of adultary the Court at Harrodsburg gave to him after regular trial a decree of divorce. He married in Dec. 1793 Hannah Winn daughter of Gen'l James Winn, by whom he had five children and died in Bullitt-co., Ky., April 15, 1814.

George RoBards (13) enlisted when 16 years old in the Revolutionary Army. He fought to its close and received three promotions for meritorious services. He had 14 children, the youngest, Mrs. Catherine Stirman born 1815 nee RoBards, survives, and lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas. The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution gave her a golden "Souvenir Spoon" as the living daughter of a Revolutionary Officer. Under the Act of Congress of June 7, 1832, he was granted a pension in Oct. 1832, just 51 years after he engaged in the battle of Yorktown.

FIREMEN IN THE NAVY.

BY HENRY HARRISON LEWIS IN N. Y. EVENING POST.

Patriotism which will endure a temperature of 140 degrees of heat is of value to a country. Surely, those who labor cheerily and with a never failing regard for their duty, standing untold discomfortscontentedly deep down in the lower regions of a man-of war, in peace and war, in battle and out, are worthy of high praise, even when we are so lost in admiration of the accuracy of our gunners. Down there between the great roaring furnaces of course nothing happening on deck can be seen, but what is heard makes up for it. The discharge of the heavy guns creates thundering echoes and raises a din almost indescribable. With a hissing of steam, the quick clanging of furnace doors, the rumble of machinery, and the spectacle of half-naked, prespiring figures toiling in the glare of the flames, there is nothing elsethat more nearly approaches the inferno of Dante. Add to it the uncertainty in time of battle and the possibility of the ship's being torpedoed without giving one a chance to gain the upper deck, and you have circumstances under which none but a brave man can work.

With it all, however, a fireman's life is a hard one. His work is onerous and disagreeable, and no matter how well he sticks to his post in the face of peril, he is seldom praised or given even his just dues.

It would be well for us to think of the men laboring for their country deep down in the grimy stokehole when next we read of the success of this vessel or that crew. But for the firemen's efforts on our battle-ships the other day, Cervera might now be speeding safely homeward in his desperate flight.

Notes.

The only officer of the Ninth United States infantry killed in the attack on Santiago de Cuba was Second Lieut. Lewis H. Lewis. The Ninth United States infantry, was stationed until it was ordered to the front, at Sackets Harbor.

Lieutenant Lewis was well known in Syracuse, where he has frequently been a visitor. One of the youngest officers at Madison barracks, Lieut. Lewis was a favorite among the men as well as among his brother officers.

A 'Bibliography of the Metals of the Platinum Group,' by Dr. James Lewis Howe, professor of chemistry at Washington and Lee University, has been published as No. 1,081 in the "Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections." The purpose of the work is "to enumerate the articles upon the metals of the platinum group found in scientific literature to the close of the year 1896." [v. James Lewis Howe (856) p. 135 Vol. V Ed.]

Mrs. Alice Lewis, 340 West Seventeenth-st., N. Y. City after only four weeks of married life, attempted to committ suicide by swallowing a quantity of carbolic acid.

Mrs. Lewis was only twenty-one years old May 10, 1898, when she married James Lewis. She will recover.

A New Home.

LEWISIANA will be published hereafter at Guilford, Conn., where all correspondence should be directed to insure prompt attention. It is hoped that this change will enable the editor to give more time to the work and will result in fuller records in many of the lines already partially traced. Let all of our friends assist in this effort to preserve, while it is still possible, the genealogy of all of our name.

Who Were Your Ancestors.

FROM THE CONGREGATIONALIST.

What is there petty or ill-advised in the study of one's family line? It is natural to desire to learn who and what the men and women were whose blood flows in our own veins, many of whose traits we more or less consciously illustrate, and to whom we owe what we have and are in a far higher degree than we often appreciate. Many a helpful lesson is learned by genealogical research. It is not dry digging among dead bones. It is a branch of study most fascinating in itself, even if it had no other attractions. But there is inspiration in discovering that one is descended from this man or that woman, once loved and honored among the sturdy pioneers who settled our country, perhaps even famous in church or state here or on the other side of the Atlantic.

It is a help to manhood, to culture, to piety to know one's self akin to those who suffered oppression and made noble sacrifices for the sake of conscience, helped to found our great Western civilization, or rallied to the defense of the infant nation when its life hung in the balance. Not to take a genuine interest in one's forefathers is almost as indefensible as to be vain because they were in some way notable. The more one studies the lives and the society of the past, the more evident becomes the steady progress of the human race towards nobler living. In the thoughtful scholar the study of genealogy is likely to develop a deeper realization of the divine Providence and goodness, and also of the sterling worth of human nature, in spite of its many, and often grave, defects.

In commencing the records of the descendants of Nehemiah (183 v p 86, Vol. III) son of Benjamin, Jr. and gr. son of Benjamin, the head of this line, I wish to give the record written in a very clear, distinct hand, as recorded in his family Bible, published in 1773, now in the possession of Robert Lewis, Jr. of Watertown, Ct. It is as follows:

Nehemiah Lewis, His Book, 1774. I was Bourn in the year 1739, September 11th.

God give him grace therein to Look,
In Looking there that he Might Know,
The Very Path that he Should Go,
That when the Bells for him Shall Toll,
God will have Marcy on his Soul.

I was Maried the 24th Day of June 1761 To my Beloved Wife, Sarah Beach, who Departed this Life, January, the 18, 1763, Aged 19.

It was the 9th Day of August 1764, I was Maried to my Secont Wife, Sarah Peck.

My Wife Sarah Peck was Bourn January 23, 1742.

1795. It was the 13th-Day of January 1795 my Beloved wife Sarah Peck, Departed this Life much Lamented. But in Faith of a Glori as Reward in the World of Spirits with God. Amen.

Nehemiah Lewis Departed this Life July 30, 1810.

CHAPTER CXXXVI.

FROM SWIFT'S BARNSTABLE FAMILIES.

Edward Lewes (8) son of George (1) resided at Rowley's pond, now known as Hathaway's pond, Jan. 12, 1662-3, George Lewes, Sen. and Geo. Lewes, Jr., had the great lot of the father by a joint deed to Edward Lewes and his brother John Lewes. Edward (8) had the northerly part, containing 27½ acres. No house is named in the deed, and the presumption is that it was built by Edward. In 1697 Edward Lewes (8) and his sons Ebenezer(315),John (127) and Thomas (47), are called South Sea men, and their proportions of the common meadows in the first and second divisions thereof were set off to them in the easternly part of the Wequaquet meadows. The families of Edward Lewes, Dolar Davis and John Linnel, were connected by intermarriages, and their lands and meadows at the South Sea adjoined. Although these families were called South Sea residents, they were assessed as belonging to the district on the north of the town, not with Hyannis or Wequaquet. I am inclined to the opinion that some of these families resided at the farm owned by John Dunn in 1720, and now known as Dunn's field, or on the other clearings in that vicinity. This view of the matter affords a satisfactory explanation to the apparent incongruities of the town and assesors' records. No more barren land than George Lewes' great lot was cleared in Barnstable and though Edward Lewes (8) may have resided there for a time, it is certain that he did not remain long. It is probable he settled in the vicinity of Dunn's field, because the meadows allotted to him were near that field.

Edward Lewes (8) was occasionally employed as surveyor of lands, was on important town committees and sustained a good character.

CHAPTER XIV.

BY S. C. LEWIS, FRANKLIN, PENN.

I have recently visited the old cemetery in Low Hampton, N. Y., and seen the graves stone referred to on p130 Vol. III. This Nehemiah I think must have been the gr. father of my gr. father Jariah (13). The old place where Nehemiah Lewis lived is still called "Lewis Farm," though there has not been a Lewis tenant or owner of it for nearly one hundred years. I also found an old saw mill still in existence, within two or three miles on the Poultney River which was built by my gr. father Jariah (13 v p 127 Vol. IV.).

His achievement was similar [but vastly more dangerous and important] to that of Paul Revere. He, in daylight saw Tarleton and his troops pass, when divining their scheme, mounted his thoroughbred horse and running parallel to the road cut in passing them, and reached Charlottesville, Virginia, five minutes in advance of the pursuing British red-coats, and gave the Virginia Assembly timely notice and saved it from capture. The Assembly voted him a costly sword for the dangerous and opportune service. Sally RoBards Jouett was the mother of a gifted Kentucky artist, Matthew H. Jouett, and the grandmother of James E. Touett, Rear Admiral U. S. Navy.

Clippings.

"The Klondike bubble has about burst." Edward Lewis of New York who has just returned to San Francisco from a ten years' acquaintance with the Yukon, says that every statement made about the Klondike may be divided by four. He is from Circle City, Alaska, and brings over $25,000. He says that only one out of every ten claims around Dawson is paying wages. Those that pay at all are paying big money. On Eldorado Creek, he says, there are about three miles of really rich ground, and on Bonanza, every foot of which has been advertised as paying, there are more than twenty miles of absolutely worthless claims. Mr. Lewis explains that a man may work all winter and get out gravel that pans fairly, and yet when he takes account of stock in the spring, find that he has made hardly more than wages.

From all reports which come to us from our salesmen on the road and from buyers the outlook for the fall season is remarkably favorable. Collections with us have never been better and the financial outlook is eminently satisfactory. We look for the biggest fall season St. Louis has ever known.—E. S. Lewis, in St. Louis Dry Goods Reporter.

THE MORAL ATTITUDE OF CORPORATIONS.

By Francis A. Lewis at the Church Congress at Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. Lewis kept the audience in rapt attention through the whole of his bright and trenchant address which was often interrupted by laughter or applause.

He began by saying that this was a question which could not be discussed without exciting strong feeling. Those who criticised corporations were nowadays in danger of being called socialists or demagogues; those who defended them either plutocrats or corporation hirelings. He would first of all point to the obvious advantages of corporations, which enabled large enterprises to be undertaken by the aggregation of small capitalists; they limited the liability of single capitalists and kept an enterprise exempt from the interruption caused by death.

They could have no moral attitude, for corporations were impersonal; in common parlance, "they have no soul." Yet when people talk, one would think them incorporated demons. They were charged with corrupting legislators and controlling elections by bribery; this surely was the fault of the electors themselves. The purchasable law-maker was a creation of the citizens who placed him where he was. They were accused of evading their business obligations; but individuals did the same. They were charged with forming trusts and combinations. What of the great department stores, and the greedy bargain hunters? He thought honors were even here. It was not true that corporations oppressed the laborers by underpaying them; often they were forced to reduce wages or close. Must they conduct business at a loss? They were not eleemosynary institutions. Besides, the public tried all it could to cheat corporations by evading payment of fare to public carriers and by instituting trumpery suits for damages. In point of fact corporations were wronged by the people, yet they were the greatest institution of modern civilization.—From "The Churchman"

JOHN GARDNER LEWIS, OF NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Among the many teachers of the name Lewis no one is better known than the subject of this illustration. A Rhode Islander by descent and birth—for all his ancestors are good old Rhode Island families mainly of Washington county, where he was born in Hopkinton on Wednesday, March 19, 1834—he has spent the best part of his life in the state of Connecticut. His father, a farmer, moved to Hampton, Conn., in 1837, where he passed his early days. Not being considered rugged enough for a farmer he entered the job printing office of his uncle, Joseph Knowles, one of the proprietors of the Providence Journal. The closing of the R. I. state lotteries deprived the Journal's office of its great source of profit the printing of lottery tickets and suddenly stopped Mr. Lewis's intended career with its ultimate goal of manager of the job printing office and proprietor of one of the largest dailies of New England.

Attending school at the East Greenwich, R. I. Academy, he taught in R. I. and on Long Island, but completed his studies at the New Britain, Ct., Normal school where he was graduated in 1856. Teaching in Haddam, Ct., and afterwards at Dr. Thomas private school for boys in New Haven, in January, 1858, he became one of the public school teachers there and has ever since remained in that city's employ. (v chapter 282 Book VIII this issue.—Ed.)

Mr. Lewis in his early years helped his brothers and sisters to get a good education and in the later years has given his children the best that New Haven provided four of his sons being graduates of Yale in the classes of 1883, 1887, 1893 and 1897.

Patriotic Societies.

From Holden's Primer of Heraldry

Within the past few years there has been a remarkable movement in the United States, which has resulted in the formation of many patriotic hereditary societies of large membership, with chapters in every state of the union.

Certain of the societies have been very active in preserving old monuments, buildings, landmarks and historic documents, or in erecting tablets and monuments at historic places, or in marking the sites of battles or the graves of Revolutionary soldiers. (How many Lewis graves are so marked?—Ed.)

As the entrance to such societies is through descent from some ancestor, genealogy has been powerfully stimulated, and thousands of family records have been examined and summarized in print. Our colonial and Revolutionary history has been studied in its details, which is the only way to fully realize it. The men of to-day have been connected with colonial and Revolutionary times. The children of the coming century will find their ancestral records all prepared for them, and they will be face to face with high standards of duty and effort.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CXII.

BY AUGUSTA WHEELER, STRATFORD, CONNECTICUT.

The following reminiscences of Abraham Bradley Lewis, (902 v p 53 Vol. IX) is taken from an old New Haven paper.

The father of the late A. B. Lewis was proprietor for a long time of a drug store. The store was on Chapel street and stood where Burgess & Burgess' hat and fur store is to-day. The father was Nathaniel Lewis, and having been long in the drug business became commonly known as Dr. Lewis, a title to which the son Abram, who was much in the store, succeeded. The young Abram attended a school which was quite famous 60 years ago. It was kept by Mr. Jarman, grandfather of Mr. Jarman, the bookseller on Church street, and not a few of our old town-born citizens of to-day attended it. The school was held in the old wooden building on State street near Crown, where Baron Schlegel's saloon was and which has just been torn down by Mr. John Bromley for the erection of a new block. The drug store of Dr. Lewis was next kept by Mr. John Fowler, who is living in Milford. The father of Abram left a fortune of $25,000 or $30,000 which was quite a fortune in those days. Beside the son Abram there were two sisters, one of whom, Mrs. Pitkin, widow of General Pitkin of Boston, is living. The property of deceased is supposed to be worth somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000. With his sister he owned the valuable land with the buildings on the line of the proposed new street from Orange to State, between Chapel and Court streets. The interest of deceased in the Young Men's Institute began 30 or 40 years ago, at which time he began to be a quite frequent visitor at that institution, absorbed in the books, periodicals and newspapers. Deceased was a kind-hearted gentleman and took a good deal of interest in boys and became quite attached to his pets, as he called them, and made some of them expensive presents. He used to say they kept him young in thought. He loved to enter into the happy spirit of youth and forget that he was surely growing to be an old man. Deceased was an attendant of the North church, and among his contributions to the funds of the church he gave $1,000.

CHAPTER CCLXXXII.

Few if any of those in the active ranks of the public school teachers of Connecticut can say what John G. Lewis (whose portrait appears in this issue) said last June "I have taught in New Haven public schools for forty years and if I live until June next I shall have been connected with the school on the corner of York and George streets for forty years."

Little wonder that such long, faithful and efficient services should have been marked as noteworthy by the press not only of New Haven but of Boston and New York. How many of the small army who have gone forth from his instructions would not have liked to personally thank the gifted New Haven editor for his glowing tribute (v chapter 280 p 37 Vol. IX) or would not heartily agree with the Boston writer when he called the subject of his illustration the ideal school master who had made the Webster school—all honor to it—what it is to-day—one of the very best in the New Haven school district, or would not read with most grateful feelings the conclusion of a vigorous article in a Metropolitan daily on the Public Teaching Force of New Haven, that "It is gratifying, moreover, that no age limit has been set up. Everything turns about the usefulness and efficiency of the employe. The wisdom and justice of this new arrangement was strongly enough proved last week when especial honor was done a principal, Mr. Lewis, who was just completing the fortieth year of service. Though advanced in years he has no peer among the principals of the city, and has before him many more years of valuable service. Nor is the lesson lost upon the faithful teachers of the district."

So it was an interesting occasion when on June 23d, 1898, there gathered in the new building which marks the site of the old Webster, members of the board of education, the supervising principals, the special teachers, all the teachers of the Webster school district and a few of Mr. Lewis' many friends—for the number was kept rigidly very small least he should gain even a hint of their intended delightful surprise—the presentation of a handsome and valuable Morris chair.

Likewise it is proposed by some of the many well known political and business men of this city—as James A. Howarth, postmaster, Morris F. Tyler, president of the Southern New England Telephone company, Harry B. Asher, attorney and member of the board of education, John Z. Mason of the New Haven Shoe company, and many more who have been trained at this school during the past forty years that next June shall witness a great celebration of this anniversary and a reunion so far as possible of all now living of the thousands of men and women in this and many other cities of our country who recall with unusual affection the days of pleasure and profit they passed in "Old Webster" with its honored principal, John Gardner Lewis (438 v p 76 Vol. III.)

CHAPTER XXII.

By Nettie J. Shaffer, Hamilton, O.

A careful reading of the "Lewis Congress" recently loaned me by the editor of LEWISIANA makes it clearer than ever to my mind that our ancestor Samuel must have been a son of John (5.XXXV) and Elizabeth (Warner) Lewis (v p 136 Vol. IV) whose sister married Washington's grand father (v p 124 Vol. IV and p 10 Vol. V) and that in accordance with my reasoning would make our Samuel an own cousin to Washington's father and a cousin-in-law to his mother, Mary Ball, who was a half sister to Hannah Ball the direct ancestor of Mrs. Jean Wood (47 Lewis) Patteson (v p 124 Vol. VI) and that is the link that connected the two families. ELLIS LEWIS, Wales to Penn.

CHAPTER XXIX.

FROM THE YORK, PA., DISPATCH.

The Republican candidate for Congress , Nineteenth Congressional District, Robert J. Lewis, is a prominent member of the York county bar. He is a young man of high character, excellent attainments and well equipped for the making of an efficient and useful congressman. He is a man of good judgment, calm and dispassionate and moreover popular among the people. Three years ago when he was a candidate for mayor of York, he reduced a Democratic majority of 500 to 600 to almost nothing on the face of the returns, while his friends claim, and not a few Democrats admit, he was elected, but overwhelmed by frauds in the Eighth ward and counted out by a majority of 28. Mr. Lewis is an ideal candidate, free from all entangling alliances, a Republican but not a factionalist, and entitled not only to the support of all Republicans in the district, but of all independent and intelligent voters, who want to sustain the national administration and have in congress a man who will faithfully and conscientiously attend to the interests of the people. Mr. Lewis ought to be, and with proper efforts, can be elected. Let the people rally to his support and elect him and they will have in Washington a representative that will do honor to the district and the grand old Keystone state.

Robert Jacob Lewis was born in Dover, York-co., Dec. 30, 1864. His ancestors on his father's side were Welsh and English Quakers, and were among the earliest Pennsylvania settlers. On his mother's side, they were German colonists. Mr. Lewis after graduating from the York High School in 1883, taught acceptably in the public schools of that city until the fall of 1889 when he entered the Yale Law School, and after graduating therefrom in 1891 was admitted to the New Haven, Conn., bar, and the same year to the York-co. bar. In 1893 Mr. Lewis was elected School Controller from the Ninth Ward, York, and re-elected in 1897. He is at present chairman of the Teachers' Committee.

In 1895 he was elected City Solicitor of York, and in the spring of 1896 reluctantly accepted the Republican nomination for Mayor. Mr. Lewis is one of the best known young members of the bar of York-co.

His brother Samuel S. Lewis, money order clerk, at the York post-office, has recently been transferred to the Washington, D. C. post-office.

Robert J. and Samuel S. are sons of Melchinger Robert Lewis (63 v p 173 Vol. VII. Ed.]

CHAPTER VIII.

BY JOHN LEWIS ROBARDS, HANNIBAL, MO.

The will of William RoBards, Sr., (v p 13 Vol. IX), testator 1783, after distributing some 20,000 acres of land, plantations, some 30 or 40 slaves, stock, bonds, etc., contains this unusual clause, showing confidence reposed in him by his father-in-law [Joseph Lewis, Sr. (5) v p 173 Vol. VIII] and his own sense of justice as between his two sets of children, viz., "All the estate left me by the last will and testament of Joseph Lewis, Senr dec., I give and bequeath to be equally divided between my seven children by my last wife (Elizabeth Lewis) viz. Lewis, George, Jesse, Sally, Joseph, Betsey Lewis and Robert and their heirs forever."

The witnesses to this will were George Payne, John Lewis (7 v p 13 Vol. VI), Joseph Lewis, Jr. (8 v p 13 Vol. VI.)

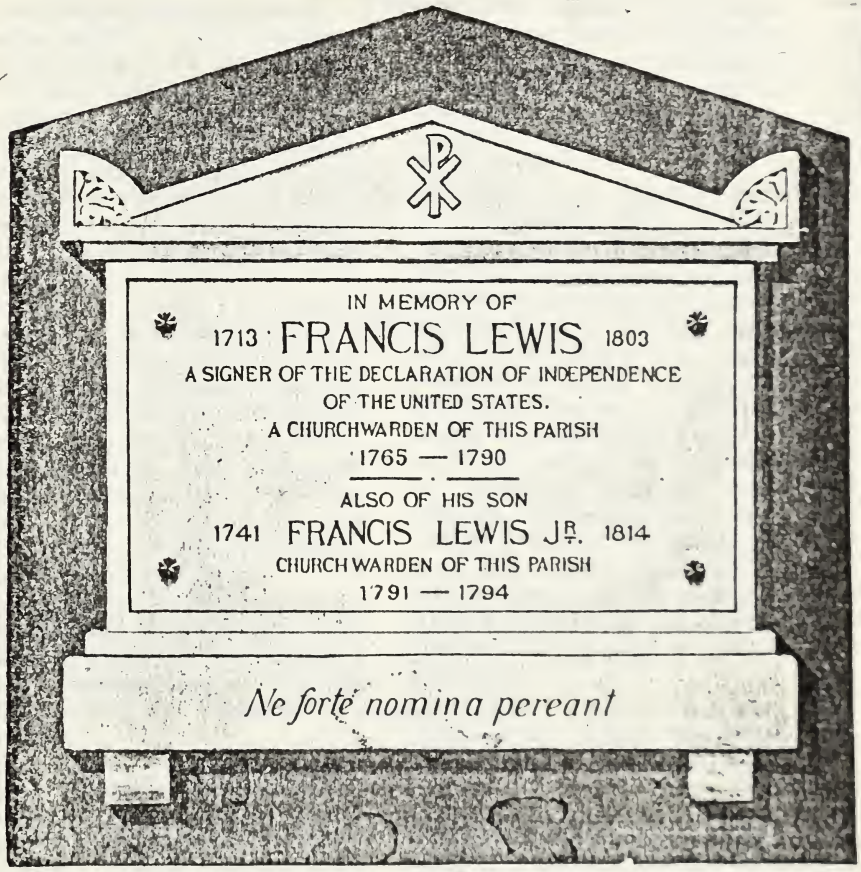
The "Lewis" Memorial Tablet.

A Memorial which was erected recently in the old church of the Parish of St George's, Flushing, L. I., N. Y., is of more than ordinary interest from the manner in which it recalls the stirring times of the War of Independence, and the laudable object thereby sought, of perpetuating the famous names interwoven with the early history of the United States.

The Memorial takes the usually adopted form of a mural tablet, bearing a suitable inscription: in this case the material being white and gray marbles, and the inscription reading as follows:



[By courtesy of J. & R. Lamb, Memorial Art Workers, 59 Carmine street, New York City.]

Mr. Lewis was born in Llandaff, South Wales, 1713, and while still in his youth left his native country with the many alluring prospects of success that might have been his, and sailed for the New World, arriving at the Battery in 1735 when New York was a city of only 9000 inhabitants.

After a long and eventful life during which he fell a prisoner into the hands of the Indian allies of the French, he was spared and afterward served his country in the First Colonial Congress under the Presidency of George Washington. He died in 1803 at the age of 90 and was buried in the church yard of Old Trinity, New York City. [Francis Book XI. In earlier issues of LEWIS-

IANA have appeared biographical sketches by "Felix Oldboy," Barrett and Mrs. Julia L. Delafield, his great grand-daughter.—ED.]

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved, parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CXIV.

By J. L. Gordon, Gen. Sec. of Boston Y. M. C. A.

Charles Lewis Pitkin (907 v p 53, Vol. IX) who for more than two decades has been numbered among the most prominent and aggressive Christian workers of New England, passed away at East Ridge, N. H., on Friday evening, Aug. 28, after an illness of two weeks. The announcement of his death caused profound grief and sorrow among his many friends and fellow-workers in this city, almost all of whom were wholly unaware that Mr. Pitkin and four of his children had been suddenly stricken down with typhoid fever. The deceased was born at East Hartford, Ct., March 8, 1840, and was, therefore, only fifty-one years of age. His splendid physical frame and robust health suggested a long life and a serene old age. Mr. Pitkin came to Boston when sixteen years of age. He soon afterward united with the Old South Church, of which he was an honored member for more than a quarter of a century. During most of these years he was a partner with his brother, Mr. William H. Pitkin, in a prosperous business enterprise.

My purpose in penning these lines is to add a personal tribute to the memory of one whose life and Christian services were for years a perpetual blessing and inspiration to every person with whom he came in contact and every organization with which he was identified.

* * * * *

His presence brought cheer. He carried about with him an atmosphere of warmth and cheerfulness—a hopefulness which he never seemed to lose. In his personality there was the light and warmth of the sunbeam. His most striking characteristic can be expressed in one word—disinterestedness.

CHAPTER CXVI.

FROM HIST. OF SHARON, CONN.

At the session of the Assembly in May, 1732, Edmund Lewis Esq. (151 v p 85 Vol. III), Capt. Stephen Noble and Mr. William Gaylord, were appointed a committee to view the Colony lands west of the Ousatonic River, and to lay out a township in the northern section of them. They were also endowed with discretionary power to lay out a township on the south of the one just mentioned, if upon viewing the lands they should be of the opinion that they were of such a quality as to render them a desirable place for a new settlement. This committee entered promptly upon their duties; and by their report dated at New Milford, Oct. 9, 1732, it appears they laid out both townships.

*** ***

Mr. Lewis who was placed at the head of this committee belonged to Stratford, and was the County Surveyor of Fairfield County. He had been employed through the whole of the preceding year in surveying and running the boundary line between the colony of Connecticut and the province of New York, which was a work of great labor. He had also been employed years before in laying out country grants in the south part of the territory and of course was well acquainted with all this region of country, then in a state of nature.

CHAPTER CCLXXXV.

By Helen Perry Maxwell, New York City.

The following clipping from Topeka, Kansas, paper seems worthy of a place in LEWISIANA if it can be placed.

Almon Benton was born at Spencer, N. Y. July 10, 1824, and died at Topeka, Kas., Sept. 17, 1898, aged 74 years. During a lingering illness his lifelong characteristic, patience, was prominent, not a murmur or complaint being made by him during his months of suffering.

He was married to Betsey F. Lewis (1865 v p 116 Vol. V.) of Pharsalia, N. Y. Jan. 20, 1848. Five children were born to them, four of whom are living—C. O. Benton, of St. Marys, Kas.; Lucia O. Case, of this city; J. O. Benton, of Onaga, Kas., and Otis L. Benton, of Oberlin, Kas. Lewis O. died in 1882, the only death that has occurred in the immediate family for the period of fifty years.

On the 20th of last January their golden wedding was celebrated, at which the surviving children, with the wives and the husband of the daughter, were all present, the first time in the history of the family that they were all together; again yesterday they were assembled to pay their last respects to the father and comfort the bereaved mother. He was of Puritan stock, being able to trace one branch of his family to Pilgrims who came over in the Mayflower.

In the early fifties he removed to the west and in 1859 moved from Iowa to Oskaloosa, Kansas, where he, with others, soon organized a Congregational church. Its first pastor was W. H. Ward, now and for many years the editor of the New York Independent. This pastor and wife were members of Mr. Benton's family during the entire pastorate.

He served the people of Lonisville, this State, as county superintendent of public instruction for a number of years, being greatly helpful in securing and encouraging educational as well as religious advantages.

He was always an earnest worker in all lines of reform, as well as church work, and a liberal supporter of the same. He was a successful business man as well as active, earnest, Christian man.

In 1883, after the death of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Benton come to Topeka to reside with their daughter, Mrs. A. H. Case from whose residence the funeral took place.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

BY DAVID H. BROWN, WEST MEDFORD, MASS.

"Who was the father of Joseph Lewis of Swansea?" The first step has been taken by the Editor of LEWISIANA, toward settling this interesting question, by removing his name from the family of George Lewis of Barnstable. He certainly is correct in acknowledging Amos Otis, the author of the History of Barnstable, as the authority on Barnstable history and genealogy. After careful investigation, Mr. Otis stated that he did not find Joseph Lewis' name on the town records, or church records of Barnstable, or in the will of George Lewis. He said that Mr. Dean, the author of the History of Scituate, erred in saying that Joseph Lewis of Swansea was a son of George Lewis and that "this error has been copied and perpetuated by the many who have undertaken to write the genealogy of the Lewis family." v p 181 Vol. VIII.

It is highly important to follow where the truth leads, and accept the expert testimony of Mr. Otis, that Joseph Lewis was not a son of George of Barnstable. Some one has suggested that he was a son of Edmund Lewis of Lynn or of William Lewis of Roxbury, but as a matter of fact there was no Joseph, in the family of Edmund Lewis of Lynn, and William Lewis of Roxbury had no son Joseph living in 1675.

The only Joseph Lewis of that period of whom there is any record, was Joseph Lewis the son of John and Margaret Lewis of Malden, born Mar. 29, 1640. Little is known of his early life, but according to the sworn testimony of Bryan Bredane, found in the Court Records of Middlesex County, Mass., at East Cambridge, by Mr. George H. Lewis v p 54 Vol. VIII, Joseph Lewis, the son of John Lewis of Malden, was in Concord early in June 1671 and was in Malden a few days later. There is no record of his death in Malden nor of his further residence there or in Concord.

By D. M. Peck, Pittsfield, Mass.

Thomas Lewis (9 v p 13 Vol. V) my gt. gr. father m (1) Nancy ——— a niece of Robert Rey who was her guardian and brought her and her brother James from England to Virginia. Whether her name was Evans or Rey I know not but she had 4 ch. by Thomas (9) Lewis d in 1805, as my gr. mother her dau Mary (37), was four years old at that time. Thomas Lewis (9) m (2) an orphan, an Irish girl, Sarah Howard by whom he had 13 ch.

Thomas (9) and this Thomas I believe the same in spite of the statement on p 42 Vol. VII. My gr. father Peck [husband of Mary (37) above. Ed.] who was a favorite son-in-law of Thomas Lewis (9) and knew the history of the Lewis family as well as Thomas Lewis did himself used to say to my cousin: "James, don't you know that you have the bluest of blood in your brains." When asked how he would tell about Gen. Andrew Lewis my gt. gt. gr. father, and how his son Thomas Lewis fought under Gen. Greene at the battle of Cowpens.

CHAPTER XXIX.

From the "Lewis Congress."

Dr. Richmond Lewis (25 v p 172 Vol. IV) was not only an accomplished and successful physician, but a man of great mental polish and social attractiveness. A difficulty of speech in childhood which, it was apprehended, would prevent his ever speaking easily, was so entirely removed in the course of his education that he was a brilliant conversationalist, fluent and elegant in his own language and in French, of which he was very fond. He lived while pursuing his medical education in Philadelphia, in a French family, that he might speak the language habitually: and it was his practice to speak French at his table, to his daughters, who, inheriting the Lewis taste for linguistic study, were interested students of several languages.

CHAPTER III.

By Bushrod H. Lewis, London, O.

I quote; the following is from the History of Madison County Ohio. (London is the county seat.)

"The History of Madison County would be incomplete without a brief sketch of the career of Philip Lewis, who, during the first 30 years of his residence therein, took a leading part in its affairs.

He was b in Pennsylvania about 1778, his infancy having been passed in the eventful days of the Revolutionary war. His father's name was Philip, and about 1796, the family removed to the Northwestern Territory and settled in Adams Co., on the Ohio river, where our subject attained his manhood, and in the session of 1804-5 he represented Adams County in the Ohio Legislature. In 1805-6, and 1806-7, his father was one of the Legislature members from that County and was succeeded by Philip Jr. in 1807-8. Thus prior to his coming to Madison County, he was one of the rising young men of the Scioto Valley. He was m in Adams County, July 4th, 1805, to Miss Nancy Umble, and in 1809, located temporarily on Deer Creek, in what is now Somerford township Madison County, Ohio. His stay there was brief for we find on record that he was appointed Director in summer of 1810, to lay off the County seat for the newly organized County, and call its name Madison. The plat of this town bears date of having been certified Nov. 15th 1810. It was however short lived, being legally displaced by London, which was laid out by Patrick McLeme the following year.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of the Witchcraft Delusion.

It is proposed in this and succeeding chapters to give some extracts from records and early writers on this subject concerning Mercy (11 v. p. 60, Vol. VII) Lewis and her part in this strange delusion.

In an address by Samuel P. Fowler before the Essex Institute (Salem, Mass.) it was said:

"We are now brought to the period of the Commencement of Salem Witchcraft, as it first developed itself in the Family of Samuel Parris, Minister at Salem Village in 1692. Mr. Parris' Household consisted, at this Time, of himself and Wife, his age being 39 years, that of his Wife 44 years, a Daughter Elizabeth, aged nine Years, a Niece of eleven years by the Name of Abigail Williams. * * * Mr. Parris's nearest Neighbors were Capt. Jona. Walcut, who had a Daughter called Mary, 17 years of Age, and his Parish Clerk. Thomas Putnam, who had a Daughter named Ann, aged 12 Years, and a servant Girl, living with him, named Mercey Lewis, aged 17 Years, Mary Warren, aged 20 Years, lived with John Proctor, Elizabeth Booth, aged 18 Years, lived near to John Proctor, Sarah Churchill aged 20 Years, lived in the Family of George Jacobs, Sen., Susannah Sheldon, aged 18 Years, lived in the Village.

These Girls, together with Abigail Williams, a Niece of Mr. Parris aged 11 Years, were in the Habit of meeting in a Circle in the Village, to practice Palmistry, Fortune Telling, etc. It appears by Evidence, given at the Courts that some of their Parents and Guardians did not approve of these Meetings. * * * If the accusing Girls had been dealt with as John Proctor would have had them [soundly thrashed both at Whipping Post and at home.—ED.], we probably should have had a short Story to tell, about Salem Witchcraft."

FROM THE BELLOWS FAMILY.

Mary Bellows Hill dau. of Rev. Thomas and Ann Foster (Bellows) Hill b Sept. 19, 1816, Waltham, Mass. m Dec. 10, 1871 Lewis Pierce (11) son of Judge Josiah and Evelina (6 Lewis v p 47 Vol. IX) Pierce, b Apr. 15, 1832 Gorham, Me.

Judge Pierce's father, Josiah Pierce, was half brother of Benjamin Thompson, Count Rumford, and was an officer in the army during the Revolution. After the Revolution he removed from Woburn, the family home, to Baldwin, Me., and engaged in lumbering in partnership with Col. Loammi Baldwin of Woburn. Judge Pierce's maternal grand father, Daniel Thompson, of Woburn, was one of the young volunteers who were killed in the Concord fight; and his wife's father, Major Archelaus Lewis (1 v. p. 14 Vol. IX) of Westbrook, Me., also served as an officer through the Revolution. Thus Mr. Pierce is descended from three Revolutionary soldiers.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; nmm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER XXI.

FROM GENEALOGY OF THE LEWIS FAMILY BY WM. TERRELL LEWIS.

Col. Joel Lewis (28 v p 62 Vol. IV) was born in Albemarle co., Va., Aug. 28, 1760. He was a large man of great muscular strength. He had just entered college at Lexington, Va., when the tocsin of war sounded. He returned to his father's home in Surry co., N. C., and joined as lieutenant the first company that left the county. There being a demand for more soldiers he returned home, made up a company and was elected its captain. The company, it is said, consisted mostly of his cousins, uncles, etc.; there being not less than twenty-two of his relations belonging to his company. It was while he was acting as captain of his company that the battle of King's Mountain came off. Col. Cleveland being a corpulent man could not climb the mountain very well, consequently he requested Capt. Joel Lewis to lead his left wing in closing around the enemy.

In this battle Capt. Joel Lewis was twice wounded, once in the thumb and once in the leg. A short time before the war closed he returned home, raised a new regiment, was elected its lieutenant-colonel; on their march to join the army news came that Cornwallis had surrendered.

Record of ch of Major George Lewis (425 v p 102 Vol. III.)

Of Col. Lothrop Lewis (484) b Feb. 13, 1764, Joseph Pierce Esq. in his history of Gorham says: "Probably no Gorham man ever stood higher in the estimation of his fellow-citizens than the Hon. Lothrop Lewis. His morals were pure, obliging and courteous in manner, prudent in words and action, and distinguished for sound common sense. His mind was not brilliant nor its operations rapid, but clear and persevering." When young he was much engaged in surveying lands. He was often a referee in important and difficult cases. He held many civil and military offices and discharged their duties with fidelity. He was Colonel of a regiment of cavalry, Justice of the Peace, Deputy Sheriff, Selectman, Representative to the General Court, member of the board of war from 1812 to 1815, and land agent of the State of Maine. He d. in Bangor Oct. 9, 1822, while in the discharge of his official duties; m (1) Tabitha Longfellow, m (2) widow Mary J. CHAPTER XXXV.

BY DAVID H. BROWN, WEST MEDFORD, MASS.

The Father of Joseph Lewis of Swansea.

No evidence has been found showing that there was any other Joseph Lewis in the N. E. Colonies at that time. It seems clear that Joseph Lewis, the son of John Lewis of Malden, was he who married Mary Jones, and settled in Swansea, and lost his life at the outbreak of King Philip's War. It is interesting to note how Joseph Lewis and Mary Jones must have come to know each other. After the death of Mary Jones's maternal grandfather, John Bibble, her grandmother, Sibyll, married Miles Nutt of Malden and went there to live. Mary seems to have been a favorite with her grandmother and must have visited at Malden often. Later she named her only daughter Sibyll, for her grandmother. Miles Nutt died in July 1671 and in 1674 Sibyll Bibble-Nutt married for her third husband, John Doolittle of Malden and thus continued her residence there. Soon after Joseph Lewis's untimely death at Swansea in 1675, his widow removed to Malden with her children, Joseph and Sibyll, the former three years old and the latter a little more than a year old. January 11, 1676-7 Mary (Jones) Lewis, the widow of Joseph Lewis, married Obadiah Jenkins of Malden, and several children were born to them. After Mr. Doolittle's death Mary (Jones) Lewis-Jenkins, and her husband went to live with her grandmother and took care of her in her last years, and had the property by the will of her grandmother Doolittle, after paying the other heirs small legacies.

If Joseph Lewis was a son of John Lewis of Malden, it may seem strange that his widow and children were not mentioned in the distribution of the property of John Lewis, after the death of his second wife. There seems however, to have been very little property to divide and Joseph Lewis's widow and children had undoubtedly had their portion before she married Obadiah Jenkins in 1677.

The following obituary is of Timothy (539 v p 76, Vol. IX).

"He was drowned in So. Royalston, Mass., Aug. 29, 1853 æ. 65 years. He was trying to save a child from drowning. Mr. Lewis had been a member of the M. E. church about ten years, and served it acceptably in various official relations. Much might be said in his praise, while for the last ten years he has done much for the support of Methodism in this place. Thus suddenly he has left a large family who deeply feel and mourn their loss among whom are J. W. and T. W. Lewis of the N. E. Conference. The people of the village and vicinity also feel the loss of an influential and Christian man, who rests until the resurrection morn."

Dr. Richmond Lewis (25).

His practice was very large, keeping him quite busy, and being the means of acquiring a large property. In his attention to it he was very diligent and systematic, and also in attending to the details of the farming at his place, Brecknock.... In regard to his person, he was as particular as in other things, his dress being always neat and elegant, without seeming to give him a moment's thought after he was once dressed. He always retained, even after the fashion had begun to change, the dainty shirt frills and queue which belonged to the dress of the gentlemen of his period. He was devoted to reading, as were all of his family, and on coming home from his riding he would refresh himself with it as a recreation, becoming so absorbed in his book that when spoken to he required a moment or so to rouse his attention to what was being said. Sympathetic with young life, and fond of children, his gracious and genial manner encouraged his children.

* * * * * *

The tastes of the matured and cultivated minds were naturally and delightfully transmitted to the bright and eager ones that were glad to follow in paths where they were so charmingly led: and the enthusiasm of the younger minds, we may be sure, kept fresh in the older that evergreen quality of immortal youth, which is a mark of genius and of the Lewises.

CHAPTER IV.

BY BUSHROD H. LEWIS, LONDON, O.

Philip Lewis m (2) Mar. 8, 1816 Abigail dau of John Melvin b Mar. 25, 1796 in Penn.

This history (v p 93 Vol. IX) further states that Mr. Lewis's official life is one of much interest. In 1813 he was appointed paymaster, Fourth Brigade, Second Division of the Ohio Militia, and we presume it was on account of holding that position that in subsequent years he bore the title of Colonel. In 1814-15 he served as County Collector, was Sheriff in 1815-16 and County Commissioner in 1817-18. He represented the Madison County District in the Ohio Legislature in 1824-25, 1825-26, and 1826-27, and in 1832-33 and 1833-34 he occupied a seat in the Senate. He filled many minor offices in the township, such as Justice of the Peace, etc., and throughout his official career his ability, honor and integrity were never questioned, Generous to a fault, he was not a money getter, but if to be a kind husband, an indulgent father, a warm and faithful friend, an efficient public officer, an honest man, is worthy of record, then indeed does the life of Philip Lewis, deserve a place in the pages of history. He d June 28, 1851, and was interred with Masonic honors, of which order he was a member, in the Old Methodist Graveyard but was subsequently re-interred at Oak Hill Cemetery. His wife survived him until May 8, 1878, when she too passed away and was laid to rest beside her companion of her earlier years.

CHAPTER IX.

Of The Witchcraft Delusion.

"It is at the Meeting of this Circle of eight Girls [says Samuel P. Fowler in his address v p 93 Vol. IX], for the purpose of practising Palmistry and Fortune Telling, that we discover the Germ, or the first Origin of the Delusion. We have endeavored to follow them after the Excitement had subsided, for the Purpose of ascertaining their Character in after Life. One only of this Circle, Ann Putnam, confessed her Folly, and sought Forgiveness. Some of them grew up Licentious in their Habits, and all of them appear to have sought Obscurity. Their whole Course, as seen in their Depositions, discloses much Malignancy, and their Ignorance was so great, that of the Eight accusing Girls, Six of them signed their Names with a Cross. * * * Parris aspears to have been very desirous of preventing his Daughter, Elizabeth, from participating in the Excitement of the Village. She was sent by her Father at the Commencement of the Delusion, to reside at Salem with Capt. Stephen Sewall.

* * * * * *

Although this Girl was one of the first Originators of the Witchcraft Delusion, in connection with her Cousin Abigail Williams, she appears to have had afterwards but little to do with Witchcraft. This arose in Consequence of following the sage Advice of Mrs. Sewall in getting rid of the Devil; or, what was more probable, in her Father taking her from the weekly Circle of accusing and bewitching Girls, and placing her in a very respectable Family in Salem."

The Verdict Publishing Co., capitalized at $5,000, was incorporated on the 10th inst. to publish books, magazines and periodicals. The directors are A. H. Lewis, O. H. P. Belmont, and James A. McMahon. Mr. Belmont subscribed $4,900, Lewis $50, and McMahon $50. During the recent election campaign in New York, Mr. Lewis wrote articles for a newspaper organ of Tammany Hall, and also did some campaign work for Richard Croker. It is reported that the new company intends to publish a weekly.

SCHUYLKILL FISHING COMPANY OF THE STATE IN SCHUYLKILL.

In 1732, a few choice spirits, some of whom were original settlers, and emigrated with Penn to the New World determined to found a "colony" at a retired spot on the banks of the Schuylkill. The "Colony in Schuylkill" was unique in its nature and character and claims to be the oldest organization of its kind in the world. The present Governor of the Colony is William Fisher Lewis, Esq.

W. H. Lewis, who has played such an important part in coaching the 'varsity eleven, and who devised and perfected the defence which stopped the "guards back" of Pennsylvania, said of Harvard's chances for next year "I see no reason why we should not have an eleven equal to this year's. After many trials we seem to have struck the right system. I also see no reason why we should not be as good physically next season as we are this. Our prospects seem bright to me."

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CXLII.

From Timlow's History of Southington, Conn.

Addin's (486 v p 166 Vol. IV) youth was spent with his father upon the farm in that part of Southington that is now the eastern part of Wolcott. It is supposed that he pursued his preparatory studies under the direction of Rev. Israel B. Woodward, pastor of the Wolcott church. At the age of 19 he entered Yale College, and graduated with that rank in scholarship, in 1803, that he was recommended by President Dwight for a position in the University of Georgia as Tutor. He continued here, teaching in several departments, for about ten years. The influence he exerted and the name he secured, are exhibited in the fact that he was appointed Collector of the Port of Mobile without his solicitation. It was a most responsible and delicate position for any man, for at that time this section of the South was in a disturbed condition. Neither the size of the place nor the emoluments of the office could offer inducements for him to remove hither, but as a government office, it was at that time among the most important. It required a mind well-balanced, discriminating, and divided. These traits Mr. Lewis had, and withal, the intelligence and gentlemanly bearing becoming the place. Entering upon his duties, he found that the office would require the utmost patience and prudence. He started out with thorough system and adhered to it strictly. As the city grew his responsibilities increased, for as the chief government officer he was naturally consulted in all important questions. He was made Post Master, an office in those days of far more importance and influence than now. The people elected him Mayor, and he was also the President of a Bank.

BOOK XXI.

GERARDUS LEWIS, New York City.

CHAPTER X.

FROM THE Berkshire Courier.

LEWIS:—In Great Barrington, Mass., Sept. 26, 1898, Ward Lewis (8 v p 21 Vol. VII) ae. 62 years.

Mr. Lewis was one of Great Barrington's foremost citizens, not foremost in a business way alone, but foremost as the possessor of the many strong and noble qualities that characterize the really useful, helpful and in every way worthy citizen. Mr. Lewis was a man of large capacity in a business way: he was identified with many enterprises, and to no small degree was their success due to his keenness of discernment, his energy and—his business integrity, that choicest of business qualities. He was, too, a public spirited man, whose excellent judgment and wise counsel were widely recognized. He was a neighborly man, and a most kind one, ready to lend a sympathizing word, or when needed, a strongly helpful hand. He was a man, likewise, abundantly blessed in his capacity for making his home a happy one for all within its sacred bounds: a truer husband or kinder father and one in whom tender affection and wise tact were more happily blended it would be hard to find. He was devoted to wife and children, and lately to grandchildren. Unostentatious, and not self-assertive, he was yet forceful wherever found. In a social way he was genial. All in all, he was a man who is thought of and spoken of as any citizen may, with just ambition, desire to be thought of and spoken of when he has gone out from among his fellows. An especial trait which will be remembered long and tenderly by the few rather than the many who knew him was that which he possessed in a marked degree of being helpful to young men—helpful in counsel simply, when that was the sufficient thing; helpful in a material way when merit deserved it. Some incidents along this line, quite unknown to his most intimate associates—unknown to his family even—have been spoken of by the recipients since his death. His sudden demise, in what was to him only the prime of life, is a distinct loss to not only the local community, but to all of Berkshire county.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

By David H. Brown, West Medford, Mass.

In 1720, some time after the death of Mr. Jenkins and his wife, Mary (Jones) Lewis-Jenkins, the Doolittle-Jenkins property was distributed to the heirs. Strange to say no part of the estate was given to Joseph Lewis, Jr., the son of Mrs. Jenkins by her first husband, Joseph Lewis of Swansea, and his name was not mentioned. His sister, Sibyll (Lewis) Howard had the same amount as her half sisters in the aggregate, though it appears she had received a part of it previously. Joseph Lewis, Jr., seems to have had his portion previously, and therefore he was not mentioned. After the death of Obadiah Jenkins, Jr. and his wife, as they left no children, their property was distributed between his brothers and sisters or their heirs.

The children of his half brother and his wife, Joseph and Hannah (Jones) Lewis, Jr., and of Samuel and Sibyll (Lewis) Howard, fared the same as those of his own brothers and sisters. See Records of Probate Court East Cambridge, thus showing that Joseph Lewis, Jr., was heir to the Doolittle-Jenkins property though he was not mentioned in the first distribution. The omission of his name did not show he was not an heir; likewise the omission of the names of Joseph Lewis Senior's widow and children, from among those to whom the remnant of John Lewis' property was distributed, in 1695, does not show that he was not a son of John.

George Lewis of Barnstable left a will in which he mentioned his children by name but there was no Joseph. John Lewis of Malden died in 1657 without making a will. There was no formal distribution of his property till 1695 or thirty-eight years after his death. Previously to that the heirs of his son, Joseph, seem to have receive their part of the property.

From a review of the facts, it appears that Joseph Lewis, of Swansea, must have been a son of John and Margaret Lewis of Malden.

CHAPTER XXXII.

From the "Lewis Congress."

Dr. Richmond Lewis's (25 v p 105 Vol. IX) genial and winning manner would not have had the charm it possessed if it had not been felt by those who knew him that behind it there was the high character of a stainless gentleman, his integrity and sense of honor and inviolable truth. It is a pleasure to remember that the setting was worthy of the jewel, the personal beauty was equal in its way to that of the mind and soul within. He was tall and handsome, erect and graceful, with brown laughing eyes and brown hair with sunshine in it, and the patrician outline of feature and noble poise of the fine head, which is shown in the only likeness of him remaining.

It is pleasant to weave for his memory a garland of remembrances of him which are so fragrant; to come as near as we can to looking upon him; to feeling the influence of his noble presence, the brilliant expression of his cultivated mind, the refined and kindly manner. It is seemingly to do this and to feel grateful for the example that has been left to us by him and by others whom he influenced—with which it is impossible to come in contact without feeling its elevating power.

CHAPTER X.

Of the Witchcraft Delusion.

Robert Calef in his "More Wonders of the Invisible World" states that on April 1, 1692 Mercy Lewis (II) affirmed "That she saw a man in White, with whom she went into a Glorious Place, viz. in her fits, where there was no Light of the Sun, much less of Candles, yet was full of Light and Brightness, with a great Multitude in White Glittering Robes, who Sang the Song in Rev. V. 9. and the CX and CXLIX Psalms: and was given that she might tarry no longer in this place."

Mercy Lewis (II) is mentioned as a witness in the 1st indictment against George Burroughs while the 3rd indictment against him was "for afflicting Mercy Lewis."

"It is difficult now," says Fowler (v p 93, Vol. IX,) "to ascertain the Cause of the Arrest of Burroughs who was preaching at Wells, at the Time, in his Pulpit. The Girl who accused him of bewitching her, was Mercy Lewis, who was then living with Thomas Putnam. She formerly lived with Burroughs, when he preached at the Village; and, upon one or more Occasions, he whipped her severely. This we suspect was the true cause of her crying out against him."

CHAPTER XIV.

FROM SWAN'S (BELOIT, WIS.) AMATEUR.

Walter Lewis (26 v. p. 61 Vol. IX.) might, if he chose, achieve a marked reputation as a composer; but, although the author of many unusually meritorious works, published and unpublished, he has never striven for notoriety in this direction. He has long since given up all band and orchestral playing, although he could perhaps make some of the "would-be-world-beaters" hustle with very little practice. He prefers the comforts of his quite, cosy home and the company of his charming wife at the close of a day's attention to business, rather than the concert hall or ball-room, being satisfied with the very liberal salary which he now receives, as general manager of the Henry Coleman estate in Philadelphia.

[The above is the conclusion of a nearly two-column article telling of Mr. Lewis's services as baritone and trombone player in bands at Gardiner and Hollowell, Me., as well as Lynn, Mass. Learning the details of printer's art in Norway, Me., he has served as correspondent and editor of some of the leading musical papers of America—The Metronome, The Leader and The Dominant. He has held important positions with the well known music publishing firms, the White-Smith Music Publishing Co., the Jean White Co. and the John Church Co. —ED.]

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CXLIII.

FROM TIMLOW'S HISTORY OF SOUTHINGTON, CT.

Addin Lewis (486 v p 118 Vol. IX) as the years passed, became identified with every public interest of Mobile and the region of which it was the metropolis. One writing of his character and reputation in that city now, says that most justly is he called "The Father of Mobile." On good authority we have it that "making money" was not with him an end, but his investments proved safe and profitable, so that in a few years he had quite a fortune. Wearied of public service, and suffering somewhat in health, he decided to retire to private life. For a few years he spent his summers in his native State, and his winters at the South. But finally becoming a good deal deaf, and also warned that he was incurably affected with consumption, he selected New Haven as his home, and here spent the remainder of his days.

CHAPTER CXLIV.

BY ADALINE M. JUDSON TIBBALS, NEW HAVEN, CT.

The pension Bureau, Washington, has the following abstract of the War record of Nathaniel Lewis (489) v p 99, Vol. IX. He enlisted Feb. 1776 when 29 years old in Revolutionary war serving each year for various periods, the last time in 1780 when, as Lieutenant, he was stationed with his Company in defense of New Haven.

When 85 years old he applied for and received a pension till his death at O.

Two at least of his descendants have joined the Daughters of the Revolution, one in the Wadsworth Chapter and the other in the Esther Stanley Chapter. Are there others?

GERARDUS LEWIS, New York City

CHAPTER XI.

From the Berkshire Courier.

Ward Lewis (8 v p 21 Vol. VII) was a native of Salisbury, Herkimer county, N. Y., where he was born Nov. 28, 1836. His father was Joseph Lewis, a commission merchant of Little Falls, his mother, Nancy Ward, daughter of John Ward of Sheffield. At the age of three years, upon the death of his mother, he came to his grandfather's home in Sheffield and resided in the family until 21 years old, enjoying the best of home training and such schooling as the neighborhood facilities afforded. On attaining his majority he engaged in the flour business in this village; saw this business grow to good proportions under his own management and that of the firm of Lewis & Warner and then Chapin & Co. In the late sixties he purchased the grist mill at Lenox Dale with which, except for a single year, he has since been connected, having had among his associates in its conduct, Wm. Perry, of Lee, and T. M. Chapin of this village. He resided in Lenox Dale between the years 1874 and 1883 and served a portion of that period as postmaster. For a number of years Mr. Lewis had been identified with the hardware business here that is now conducted under the name of Burget & Lewis Company; he was one of the organizers of and was the manager and treasurer of the Great Barrington Electric Light Company; also had a large interest in the Great Barrington Coal Company and was a trustee in the Great Barrington Savings Bank. Mr. Lewis, in the fall of 1862 enlisted and was made a corporal in Co. D, 49th Massachusetts Volunteers, but, because of physical inability, was honorably discharged the following February. Politically, he had been a life long Democrat, earnest and much of the time active in the promotion of his party's cause, this largely influencing him to become financially and otherwise interested in the welfare of the Pittsfield Journal, the office of president of the Journal Company being held by him at the time of his death. Zealous as a Democrat, he was yet most tolerant and honorable in his attitude toward those differing with his political views. He had held but one office, that of county commissioner, but in that did faithful service.

CHAPTER XCVIII.

BY JOHN C. LEWIS, LOUISVILLE, KY.

As regards the authority for the statement that Fielding Lewis, Jr., (of Fairfax) eldest son of Col. Fielding and Betty Washington Lewis, had sons, (v p 90 Vol. IX;) my father born 1818, now with me (aged 80) the second son of Charles, personally knew his Uncles John, Geo. W. and Robert, who with my gr. father Charles were sons of Fielding Lewis and Nancy Alexander.

In memoirs of the Long Island Historical Society No. 4 (Washington and Mount Vernon) Geo. Washington mentions in his Diary of Mt. Vernon, Mch. 6, 1787, "G. W. Lewis a son of Mr. Fielding Lewis was at Mt. Vernon on a visit."

The existence of two Fielding Lewis' both about the same age, both sons of two brothers, Fielding (Col.) and Warner (58 v p 136 Vol. IV) Lewis, hence first cousins, has to a great measure created the entanglement that appears to exist in regard to my great grandfather Fieldings (of Fairfax) descendants. The other Fielding Lewis of Weyanoke (Charles City Co.) had several daughters but no sons. This grand old man's portrait hangs as a prize memorial among the artistic treasures of the Agricultural Society of Virginia, at Richmond. This portrait has been ascribed to Fielding of Fairfax—my gt. grand sire—by the author of the Lewis Genealogy, hence many outside of my family (his direct descendants) believe this true. My father does not recall any Austin (v p 90 Vol. IX.)

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE WITCHCRAFT DELUSION.

In President Increase Mather's "Further Account of the Tryals of the New England Witches," printed in London, in 1693 is given Rev. Deodat Lawson's account of his visit to Salem.

"On the Nineteenth day of March last I went to Salem Village, and lodged at Nathaniel Ingersol's near to the Minister Mrs. P's House.

On Lord's Day, the Twentieth of March, there were sundry of the afflicted Persons at Meeting, as Mrs. Pope and Goodwife Bibber, Abigail Williams, Mary Walcut, Mary Lewes and Doctor Grigg's Maid. They had several sore Fits in the time of Public Worship, which did something interrupt me in my first Prayer, being so unusual. After Psalm was sung; Abigail Williams said to me, Now stand up, and name your Text!

On Monday the 21st of March, the Magistrates of Salem appointed to come to Examination of Goodwife C. [Cloyse. She was Sarah dau. of William Towne and 2d wife of Peter Cloyse. Her sister Rebecca m. Francis Nurse and was executed as a witch July 19, 1692 and another sister Mary m. Isaac Esty and was executed as a witch on Sept. 22, 1692. Peter Cloyse was brother of Thomas (killed in 1690 at the second destruction of Falmouth by the French and Indians) who had m. Susannah Lewis (5) aunt of the "accusing girl" Mercy. They had ch. v. Dr. Fowler (v. p. 93, Vol. IX) says, "We have not been able to discover the Cause of the alleged Complaint of Witchcraft, against those three excellent Women, viz: Rebecca Nurse, Mary Easty and Sarah Cloyse. They were Sisters, of a good Education and fair Reputation. It is not to be denied, that the Part Parris took in the Trials of these Women, was the chief Cause of Opposition towards him, and led at last to his Dismission from the People at the Village His principal Opposers were the Relatives of these unfortunate Sisters." And again elsewhere he says, when speaking of one of them, "She appears to have been an amiable and exemplary Woman, and well educated for the Times in which she lived. We suspect, from an Examination of the Charges brought against her at the Courts, that she had several Times severely rebuked the accusing Girls for their Folly and Wickedness, when meeting in their Circles. In this Way she probably incurred their Displeasure." ED.]

THOMAS LEWIS, Philpesburg, N. Y.

CHAPTER V.

BY JOHN C. PEARSON, COOPERSTOWN, N. Y.

Thomas Lewis (1) of the City of New York on or about the 13th day of September, 1684 made his last will and testament in the Dutch tongue before William Bogardus, Notary Public, and Martin Clock and Gerritt Daykinck, of the said city as witnesses. In this he "did make grant and give unto his wife Geesie Lewis all his goods moveable and immoveable (by which words the Dutch understand a Personall and Reale Estate as houses lands, goods and chattles) Actions and rights as he should leave by his decease none Excepted and y't during her Life to Govern and administer and deall therewith as he himself being alive might or could do and after her Decease he Granted the same to his Children by name Lodwick, Barent, Leonard, Katherine and Thomas Lewis Junior, without any Distinction between the Sons and Daughters and that the Eldest Son should not pretend any prerogative therein."

Geesie Lewis was granted letters of Probate April 1, 1686; and believing she had full right to do so, disposed of sundry parts of the lands using the purchase money to pay her husband's debts and bring up her children. About 1718 she was advised that she had had no legal right to do this, wherefore the N. Y. Legislature passed June 24, 1719 "An Act for Settling the Estate of Thomas Lewis Late of the City of New York Deceased," confirming the title of the lands already sold by Geesie Lewis and providing for the distribution of the remainder after her death. From the text of this act I have learned and condensed these particulars. Also that between the probate of the will 1686, and the passage of the Act. 1719: Lodawick Lewis (2) had died without leaving issue.

Barent (3), Thomas (6), and Katharine (5) were allso Dead Leaving Issue every one of them."

Leonard Lewis (4) was then (1719) living, also his mother Geesie Lewis, "who is now very antient."

Lewis Bey.

BY G. W. STEEVENS IN "WITH KITCHENER TO KHARTUM."

At the Atbara was Lieutenant Colonel Lewis with an all-Egyptian brigade. The brigadier is one of the most popular officers in this or any other army. Colonel Lewis's talents and abounding vitality would have led him to distinction in any career. From the fact that he is affectionately known as "Taffy," it may be deduced that he is in whole or part a Welshman—certainly he is richly dowered with the vivacity, the energy, and the quickness of uptake of the Celt. He treats his staff and subordinates like younger brothers, and discipline never suffers. I have heard him say that he is always talking, but he is also always very much worth listening to.

*** *** ***

Four months later. But the Atbara was even more utterly transformed. I had left it a fortified camp; I found it a kind of Nine Elms. Lewis Bey's house, then the pride of the Sudan, now cowered in the middle of a huge mud-walled station-yard.

*** *** ***

Battle of Omdurman. Dervishes were firing at us from the top of Gabel Surgham, Dervishes were firing behind and to the right of it. The 13th Sudanese were bounding up the hill; Lewis's brigade had hastily faced to its right westward and was volleying for life; Macdonald's beyond, still facing northward, was a sheet of flashes and a roll of smoke.... Lewis and Macdonald, facing west and south, had formed a right angle. They were receiving the fire of the Khalifas' division, and the charge of the Khalifa's horsemen: behind these the Khalifa's huge black standard was flapping raven-like.

[On Dec. 26, 1898 Colonel Lewis overtook Emir Ahmed Fedil with the remnants of the Dervish army, whom he defeated killing 500 of his followers and taking many prisoners. It is believed that Fedil's defeat is the final stroke.—ED.]

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

By Geo. S. Stewart, Boston, Mass.

My data of a Lewis family of Bristol, R. I. from whom I trace my descent is as follows:

Thomas (3) Lewis d Apr. 26, 1709 ae about 76 years.

Hannah Lewis, widow d Jan. 1717.

Mary Lewis dau. of Thomas and Hannah d Mar. 26, ~~1760~~ 1686 [If this record is correct and Arnold's Vit. Stat. of R. I. under Bristol give the same, it will prove important in the distintinguishing of this Thomas from Thomas (4.XXIV.) For if the investigation by Mr. L. B. Lewis (v p 185 Vol. IV) are to be relied upon and we believe that they are, at this time Mary (Davis) Lewis wife of Thomas (4) was still living. Hence this Bristol family is not the Barnstable line.—Ed.]

Hannah Lewis (dau. of Thomas?) and George Morey m Jan. 22, 1683. George Morey is said to have been the son of George Morey of Taunton, Mass. 1650, Lieut. in 1659 and living in 1690 (v Briggs Gen.) and the gr. son of George Morey who came in the "Truelove" 1635 (ae. 23) and d Duxbury, 1640 (ae. 28). CHAPTER XII.

Conclusion of Rev. Deodat Lawson's personal narrative v. p. 141 Vol. IX.

And about Twelve of the Clock they went into the Meeting House which was thronged with Spectators ....The Number of the Afflicted Persons were about that time Ten viz: Four Married Women, Mrs. Pope, Mrs. Putnam, Goodwife Bibber, and an Ancient Woman, named Goodall; three Maids, Mary Walcut, Mercy Lewes, at Thomas Putnam's, and a Maid at Dr. Grigg's: there were three Girls from 9 to 12 Years of Age, each of them, or thereabouts, viz: Elizabeth Parris, Abigail Williams, and Ann Putnam: these were most of them at Goodwife's C's Examination, and did vehemently Accuse her in the Assembly of Afflicting them, by Biting, Pinching, Strangling, etc . The said C. said, they were poor distracted Children, and no heed to be given to what they said. Mr. Hathorne and Mr. Noyes replyed. It was the Judgment of all that were present, they were Bewitched, and only she the Accused Person said, they were Distracted.

On Wednesday the 23d of March, I went to Thomas Putnam's, on purpose to see his Wife....

The first of April Mercy Lewis, Thomas Putnam's Maid, in her Fit; said, they did eat Red Bread, like Man's Flesh, and would have had her eat some but she would not: but turned away her head, and spit at them, and said, I will not Eat, I will not Drink, it is Blood, etc. She said, That is not the Bread of Life, that is not the Water of Life. Christ gives the Bread of Life, I will have none of it. (Then follows the Vision of the White Man as given by Calef v. p. 125 Vol. IX ED.)

CHAPTER VI.

By JOHN C. PEARSON, COOPERSTOWN, NEW YORK.

Richard, Earl of Bellomont, appointed to succeed Col. Benjamin Fletcher as governor of the province of New York, removed several members of the Governor's Council, including Col. Nicholas Bayard, Sept. 28, 1698, and among the new men appointed was Samuel Staats, Frederick Philipse (v. p. 27, Vol. VII, p. 13, Vol. VIII) resigned his seat next day. The Earl drew up ten separate reasons for Mr. Bayard's removal, one being: "3d, That he connived at Fletcher's granting commissions to pirates manned here for the Red Sea; procured protections from the governor, and received a reward; advised to a piratical ship's being admitted into port with her spoils, and connived at Fletcher's receipt of presents from pirates."

Col. Bayard gave a written answer from New Jersey, October 17, 1698, Accounting for the third charge. He says that several years previous he had by letter to Gov. Fletcher, then at Philadelphia, requested his favor in be. -lf of one Thomas Lewis (6) who had been abroad in a privateer, some of the crew of which had killed the master: and of one Barent Rynderson (v. p. 28, Vol. VII, p. 158) a comrade of Lewis: that the letter was written at the request of their neighbors Leenders Lewis (Leonard 4) and Samuel Staats, the former a brother to Thomas Lewis and the other brother-in-law to Barent Rhynderson and one of his lordship's new counsellors, and very solicitons to procure Gov. Fletcher's license for the return of their relations, and their settlement in New York. That the governor granted the favor desired and inclosed the licenses to him, which he delivered to Leenders Lewis and Samuel Staats, who, unrequested, offered him a bag of 100 pieces of Eight for the governor, and 18 or 20 ducats for himself, both of which he refused to accept until he was importuned to gratify their desire of testifying their acknowledgment of the great favor they had received; and for the confirmation of this narration he urges the examination of the four persons named, all of them in town. He adds that the licenses were upon condition of continuing in the province and being of good behaviour, and at the time were commonly called 'protections.'

Bismark, the Man and the Statesman.

BY CHARLTON T. LEWIS IN HARPER'S MONTHLY.

Every reader knows something of his marvelous career, with its sharp contrasts of exalted authority and humiliation, of triumph and fall. To depict his titantic personality, too, all the resources of graphic and literary art have been called into service, until no figure, no intellect, no moral nature of our times seems to be more minutely known.

*** ***

The perfect consistency of his statesmanship can only be appreciated by those who discover how one central purpose dominated all his powers and directed his entire career....The end in view, as defined by himself, was the unity and consolidation of Germany, and it is hard indeed to find in history a splendid purpose so consistently and magnificently pursued, through difficulties that seemed like barriers of fate, to a consummate triumph. His whole story of his life, and, above all, his final revelation of his own mind, must be read with a clear apprehension of this as at once the inspiration and the limitation of his thoughts and efforts, in order to do jusice to his capacities and his character.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Ct.

CHAPTER CLIV.

Concerning the recent death (d Feby. 21, 1899) of Mrs. Isaac C. Lewis in Meriden, one of the best known Universalists in the state of Connecticut, the Rev. Dr. W. S. Perkins of Meriden writes the Universalist Leader:

Mrs. Lewis was the last of the older generation of the large and influential Pomeroy family. Although never robust and for several years an invalid, she lived to see her sisters, brothers and husband pass on into the higher life, until while having all the comforts that wealth and faithful attendance of devoted children could supply, the attractions of heaven came to outgrow those of earth. Mrs. Lewis was remarkable for her patience in suffering, her thoughtfulness for others, her faithfulness to her friends and her generosity to the poor and to every good cause. She had been a member of the Universalist church from the time of its organization in Meriden, and to her and her husband, the Hon. Isaac C. Lewis (v 75, p 121 Vol. IV) more than to any others, the Meriden church owes its existence. She was greatly interested in and a generous supporter not only of the local church, but of all Universalist institutions. She leaves three children, Mrs. Charles H. Fales, Mrs. James H. Chapin and Henry J. Lewis.

GERARDUS LEWIS, N. Y. City.

CHAPTER XII.

BY WM. FRISBIE LEWIS, OAKLAND, CAL.

DEAR SIR—I believe Books 21 and 81 are the same.

Leonard Lewis (4, LXXXI, p 27 Vol. VII) had in 1703 in New York City 2 male children and 5 female. Of his children Cornelia (7) b 1692, m Mr. Kipp, brother of Rachael Kipp who m Gerardus Lewis. Evidence that he most probably knew the Leonard Lewis family if he was not a son. The records say that he was a young man b in New York City, living in Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, m June 31, 1720. His wife's brother m Cornelia Lewis Jan. 7, 1700. They lived at the home town of the Kipps, Kipsburg, and the Kipps went to New York City to live. In 1714 the only Lewis living in Dutchess county, New York, was Leonard's family. It contained males 16 to 60, three persons; females 16 to 60 five; female children, three; male children, two. Showing his family had increased from seven children to leven. Now six years before Gerardus Lewis was married, there were no other Lewises in Dutchess county but Leonard's family. One of the sponsors to Gerardus Lewis' children was Johannes Hardenburg, same name as Leonard's wife. Now on p 157 Vol. VII we find Thomas Lewis and Maria Vanderburg living in Dutchess county. At the baptism of their Cornelia June 11, 1718, the sponsors were Gerrit and Cornelia Lewis. Leonard, baptized Feb. 4, 1720, sponsors, Leonard and Elizabeth Hardenburg. I do not come across this name Gerrit Lewis in my investigations again. There was a Gerrit Hardenberg of anterior date from whom he must have received his name on his mother's side. Gerrit is a Dutch name, the English of it is Gerard, and Latinized is Gerardus. It was quite common in those times for the Holland Dutch to Latinize the names. On getting married the young man thought that he would follow the customs of the period. My family of Lewis became thoroughly Holland Dutch by continued intermarriage. I think "Lewis" was originally French, of late years it is more Welch. My father spoke the Holland language.

From early childhood his reverence for the Bible, the church, and all religious things was very deep and his inclination to a religious life was strong. In his 18th year he was a member of the M. E. church in Phillipston, Mass., and began to prepare for the ministry. He attended school at Athol and Royalston and by his own exertions secured means to study at Wilbraham. He joined the N. E. conference in 1835 and was stationed on the Rowe Circuit with Rev. C. Haywood. As an outfit he had $100 with which he bought a horse, saddle, bridle, a valise and a few books. He was ordained Deacon at Nantucket in 1837 by Bishop Waugh, and Elder in Lynn in 1839, by Bishop Soule. His fields of labor were as follows, viz.: Granville, 1836; Wales, Monson and So. Wilbraham, 1837; Monson, 1838; Pelham, 1839; Prescott and Dana, 1840-41. Worcester and West Boylston, 1842; Princeton, 1843-44; Oakham, 1845-6; Brookfield, 1847-8; Webster, 1849-50; Fitchburg, 1851-2; Laurel St., Worcester, 1853; Natick and Needham, 1854-55; Hopkinton, 1856-57; Newton Upper Falls, 1858-59; Topsfield, 1860; Rock Bottom, 1861-2; Shrewsbury, 1863-64; Southbridge, 1865-67; Clinton, 1868-69; Ashburnham; 1870; Cochituate, 1871-72; North Andover, 1873-4; Purchase St., Newburyport; 1875-6, after which he resided in Clinton, Mass., until his death, Jan'y 17, 1889. In 1841 he preached the first Methodist sermon in Enfield, Mass. Although not of strong physique, he was unable to preach only three Sundays during 41 years of active service. During the first eight years of his ministry his salary averaged only $165 per year, mostly paid in provisions and fuel. One year he received nearly all his salary in palm leaf hats, which he exchanged for goods. After a number of years of well earned rest, he died Jan'y 17, 1889, of paralysis, in his 77th year and having been in the ministry 54 years.

CHAPTER XIII.

FROM UPHAM'S SALEM WITCHCRAFT.

In all these trials, Mercy Lewis was a principal witness and actor; yet, we find, among the papers, testimony from the most respectable and reliable persons, that she was not to be trusted....She was also seventeen years of age (In all the depositions she is spoken of as aged 19 or about 19. However Dr. Fowler calls her 17 v p 93 Vol. IX. Among the facsimiles of autographs of persons mentioned in these trials, Upham gives that of Mercy Lewis. Evidently she was not one of the girls who signed their names with a cross, v p 108, Vol. IX. —ED.].

When quite young, she was, for a time, in the family of the Rev. George Burroughs; and, in 1692, was living as a servant in the family of Thomas Putnam; although, occasionally she seems to have lived, in the same capacity, with that of John Putnam, Jr., the constable of the village. Mercy Lewis performed a leading part in the proceedings, had great energy of purpose and capacity of management, and became responsible for much of the crime and horror connected with them.

One of the Original Billaverae of Salem Witchcraft times.

The Deposition of Mercy Lewis, Aged 19. This Deponent testifieth and saith that last Night Philip English and his Wife came to mee, also Goodwife Dasten, Eliza Johnson, and Old Pharoh of Linn; sd. Mrs. English urged mee to set my Hand to a Booke, and told mee she would afflict me dreadfully and kill me if I did not: Said also if I would but touch the Booke I should bee well, or else I should never. Mrs. English said she might bring the Book now she thought everie one of them would bee cleared, and now at this present Time before the Grandjury sd. Philip English, his Wife, and old Pharoh, come into the Roome, or their Shape and stroke mee on the Brest, and almost choaked mee, and said they would strangle me if they could. CHAPTER VII.

By John C. Pearson, Cooperstown, New York.

Meantime (v p 156 Vol. IX) the Earl of Bellomont sent to the English Lords of Trade various evidences of his predecessor's misdeeds, and to prove the existence of 'protections,' he sent the depositions of Dr. Samuel Staats and Alderman Leonard Lewis of New York, made before him May 6, 1698. Both swear that they treated with Col. Nicholas Bayard for the governor's protection for Barent Rhynderson and Thomas Lewis. They gave him 75 pieces of Eight each for the governor and 12 pieces of Arabian gold for himself. Col. Bayard being desired to inform the Board about the matter said "that upon the proposition made him by Alderman Lewis (his neighbour and friend) for obtaining the Protection mentioned, he writ to Col. Fletcher, who was then in Pennsylvania, and receiv'd answer from him that he would make no bargain about that matter. Expressing himself, that Col. Bayard knew it was not his principle to make any such Bargain; but that in sending him the Protections desired Col. Fletcher added that they might make what present they pleased. Being asked the reason why protections were desired for these men, he said, it was to secure them from being press'd. He also said that he does not remember Dr. Staats was with him, but only Alderman Lewis, and that the said Lewis told him that the persons for whom Protections were desired had been abroad rambling, but did not say they had been with Capt. Tew," etc.

The fact seems to be that they had sailed on a pirate cruise with Capt. Tew, a most famous or infamous pirate about 1694. However, after all this correspondence, nothing was ever done about the matter.

The Earl of Bellomont in writing to the Lords of Trade from New York, Nov. 12, 1698, says of Alderman Leonard Lewis and Dr. Samuel Staats: "I can assure your Lordships they have as good a character as any two men in New Yorke, excepting none, and are very substantiall men as to estates."

MARRIAGES.

In Providence, R.I. Jan 3d, 1899, in Grace church, the rector, the Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, Jr., read the service at the marriage of Miss Harriet S. Watson to John B. Lewis. The church was filled, as the groom is the son of John D. Lewis and the bride is the daughter of Col. Arthur H. Watson, both families being prominent in society.

DEATHS.

At Philadelphia, Pa., suddenly, Sept. 26, 1898, William H. Lewis, in his 60th year.

He was superintendent of Roxborough Baptist Sunday school for nearly twenty-nine years, and church treasurer for twenty-six years. He held various positions of honor and trust among them being the presidency of the Nugent Home. In his own church he will be sadly missed.

At Thompson, July 28, 1898, by a freight train, Giles L. Lewis, ae. 73 years an old and esteemed resident of Thomson borough. He has served continuously as justice of the peace at Thomson for about 30 years and was always prominent in business, political and social concerns of the borough. He is survived by two sons, Chas. M. and Frank W., who are engaged in mercantile business in Thomson.

In Brooklyn, N. Y., Sunday, Mar. 26, 1899, at the Mansion House, Eugene C. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis was a member of one of the oldest families on Long Island, his ancestors having lived in Northport for several generations. He was born in Huntington, L. I., forty-three years ago. When he was a mere youth his father engaged in business at Brooklyn, where the deceased's education was obtained in the local schools, including the Adelphi Academy. In early manhood he was associated for some ten years with the J. Ottman Lithograph Company, and after the death of Mr. Ottman he became a stockholder in that company. His close application to work impaired his health, so that he was obliged to sever his connection with active business, and for two years he sought to improve his health by traveling in the South and by spending much of his leisure at his country residence upon the Nessequogue River, Smithtown, L. I. In 1892 he purchased an interest in a book binding business, of which he was the sole owner at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Crescent Club, New York Canoe Club, New York Typothetae, Fraternity Council, Royal Arcanum, and Acanthus Lodge of Free Masons. In his early manhood he married Adele Spurge, who survives him. He also leaves a mother, Anna E. Lewis.

It was his patriotic tribute on the floor of the house in '95 that caused an act placing the national flag on the state capitol every day in the year.

Clippings.

An introduction to the study of Literature by Edwin Herbert Lewis, Ph. D., Associate Professor of English in the University of Chicago, has just been published by The MacMillan Company. Prof. Lewis is already known to teachers of English by his "First book in writing English." This present volume is a collection of short masterpieces of modern literature designed for reading and study in the higher grades. It consists of a body of lyrics, ballads, essays and short stories, graded by careful experiment with some hundreds of students, and with all due regard to their expressed interest. Each section is opened with a critical introduction which will serve as a guide to both teacher and student.

Mrs. Irene B. Lewis, of Hamilton, N. Y., has just made the generous gift of $5,000 in cash to Colgate University to found three scholarships for the purpose of aiding young men, studying for the Baptist ministry in that institution. Two of the scholarships of $1,500 each, are given as a memorial of the late Matthias Launt, of Hamilton. The other will be named the Lewis scholarship in honor of the donor.

Frank H. Lewis of New Haven, Ct. has been given a patent upon a paste composition for saving gold leaf, which will prove of great value to bookmakers and decorators. The article, called Car-Mu-Cha, is made of crude rubber, kerosene and benzine which becomes non-adhesive and takes up the leaf and holds every particle of it. It is claimed that one pound will take up and hold $75 worth of gold. It is also found that it will clean leather and silk goods without injury. Mr. Lewis is a practical book-binder, and his invention is the result of many years of study and experiment. It has been tested thoroughly in this country, and plans are being made for introducing it in Great Britain.

A Shakespearean Miner.

A tall, thin man, with long, white hair, a thin face and sparse, white beard, came to the cabin door. He wore a faded, torn flannel shirt, ragged and grimy overalls held about the waist by a leather strap, and heavy brogan shoes. This was the Shakespearean scholar. He is James M. Lewis, and is 65 years old, poor and intensely proud. His home is a rough-board shanty in a mining settlement twenty-two miles up the Colorado River from Needles, Cal.

This gold camp is a most forbidding spot and but for the mines no white man would try to live there.

James Lewis was born at Albany, N. Y., in 1833, was a sailor on whaling voyages, and then drifted West. He married in 1854 and lived at Leavenworth, Kan. for a time. He was in the Frazer River gold stampede and worked on the Comstock lode in 1863. He went to Denver in 1864 and struck it rich in the Colorado mines. "I was rich in 1866 and lived in plenty in Denver, and I had refused $70,000 for my mine, the Cataract, near Ward, Col. My house in Denver burned down and I lost all in it; my mining claim was contested in the courts, and I lost that also and $8,000 in law bills. Then, when I was left without even a dollar, my wife was killed in a runaway accident and my only boy was implicated in a crime in the South. I was almost crazy when this last blow fell upon me." "I began reading Shakespeare that very day—thirty years ago next February—and I've never grown weary of that master mind. I praise, I bless the day I was led to Shakespeare. I have never grieved over my losses since I came to know Shakespeare. I have never really cared to be rich and influential. A hut with my Shakespeare is good enough for me. I know I am called a crank, but many a man has told me privately he envied my solace in my book.

"I've been knocking about Arizona and New Mexico for twenty-five years. I've always been as poor as you see me now, but no one has been happier. I've prospected and held downclaims, worked in the Tombstone and Harqua Hala mines, and now I'm paid $25 a month to look out for a half-developed mine here on the Colorado River until its title is tested in the courts. I've slept out of doors for months, have been in canons and on mountain sides with nothing alive about me but my dog for six months at a stretch, and I've been a king with my Shakespeare with me. I could sit here all day and tell you how the bard has made my lonely life joyous, how I am a better man for that man, and how many times my Shakespeare has driven away the blues and how it has taught me to be patient, generous, gentle, and therefore a worthier man. All the rules of life are in that book; the best code of morals is there, and in the finest language."—From N. Y. Sun.

The Antarctic Ice Cap.

By Leon Lewis.

As soon as the great Antarctic ice cap began forming it began pulling the waters of the ocean across the equator into the southern hemisphere. At Mount Desert, Maine; on the Fraser River, British Columbia, at Glen Roy, Scotland, and all over the northern hemisphere there are ancient sea margins which indicate beyond cavil or question that the ocean once stood at the height at which we find these markings, or more than a thousand feet higher than at present.

*** ***

The development of the great glacier at the South Pole has reached the point which immediately precedes its sudden breaking up into fragments. At any day or hour the abrupt disintegration of these millions of cubic miles of ice may let loose all the accummulated waters of the southern hemisphere—four-fifths of the whole!—and start them northward on their dreadful mission of destruction.

The glaciers of Greenland and other northern lands—nay, the very bulk of our northern continents themselves—will at once become terribly potent to attract these loosened and floating bergs and waters, and they will come pouring across the equator in a wall a mile high, bearing on their crests the gigantic fragments of the ice cap, which will be hurled against all the low lying lands of Europe, Asia and North America, burying them hundreds of fathoms deep before one can do more than utter a last appeal for mercy !—N. Y. Herald.

Lewis College.

FROM SIMPSON'S CYCLOPEDIA OF METHODISM.

Lewis College is located in Glasgow, Howard co., Mo., on the line of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railroad. The surrounding country is rolling, fertile and beautiful, and the place is one of the most beautiful in the state. It is owned jointly by the Missouri and St. Louis Conferences of the M. E. church and is under their direct control. It owes its origin to the benevolence of the Lewis family of Howard county, who desired to consecrate a portion of their wealth to the promotion of general knowledge and religious culture. The first step taken was the establishment of the Lewis library, by Colonel B. W. Lewis, who bequeathed to the church for that purpose the sum of $10,000. A library building was then erected by Mrs. Eleanor Lewis and B. W. Lewis, Jr., and Major J. W. Lewis, at a cost of $26,000. In this edifice the college was organized and opened by Rev. D. A. McCready, in September, 1866. Its commodious building, beautifully situated on elevated grounds, overlooks the city and river. It is now (1881) under the presidency of Rev. James C. Hall, A. M., who is assisted by a corps of able and competent teachers. Though comparatively young, it has done a good work in the cause of education.

Major James W. Lewis was born in Virginia in 1822, but removed to Missouri and settled at Glasgow. He engaged in mercantile business, and also acquired considerable wealth. Being devoted to the interests of Methodism he has labored for its advancement. Through his gifts and that of other members of the family a college was founded in Glasgow. He represented the Missouri Conference as a lay delegate in the General Conference of 1872.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

BOOK LIV.

EVAN LEWIS, Wales to Pa., 1682.

CHAPTER XVII.

FROM YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY.

On Thursday, April 27, 1899, the Yale Corporation announced the choice of Professor Charlton Miner Lewis (5 v p 92 Vol. V) as the first Emily Sanford Professor of English Literature at Yale. This chair, was endowed by the will of the Hon. E. C. Billings of New Orleans in memory of his wife, who was Miss Emily Sanford of New Haven. The gift of $70,000 was made in his will, and his death occurred December 1, 1893. The fund, principal and interest, amounts to date to between $86,000 and $87,000.

No appointment has been made to this chair until that of Professor Lewis. The failure of the authorities of Yale to act has been the subject of a great deal of comment and criticism, and those in power here have admitted that it had always been a perplexing question. There had been talk of various candidates from time to time, and it is probably true that one or two elderly men of national reputation had been informally approached in the matter. That the position, however, has been offered to a long string of literary men, as some of the papers have indicated, has no foundation in fact.

There has been from the first an extreme solicitude to be as nearly as possible exactly right in making this choice. The chair was a conspicuous and an important one; the English Department was in its formative state and much in the public eye. The value of a good man in the position, it was felt, would be tremendous and the injury from a wrong choice would be almost irreparable.

Professor Lewis was the oldest of the younger wing of the English staff in the Academic Department. Although he has been comparatively a short time in teaching, his mind and temperament have always been distinctly that of the scholar, and he has always shown a decided trend towards literary work and study.

The appointment is emphatically a success. In this verdict undergraduates join with graduates. The appointee has first of all the respect of his colleagues as a scholar and respect of his students as a man, and as a teacher, of nice discrimination, of originality and thoroughness. Having been for less than five years in the pursuit of letters, he has not a long record in book-making. His most ambitious work, the thesis on which he was given his doctor's degree last June, "Foreign Sources of English Versification," has received very favorable comment from scholars in Europe and America. Not only does Prof. Lewis display fulness of knowledge, but he has treated a perplexed and difficult subject with admirable lucidity. In general, a fact of much importance, all of Professor Lewis' work, even to the smallest detail of instruction, has been thorough and scholarly. He is a hard worker and in his discharge of duty very exacting of himself and conscientious. His standard of class-room work is high and he has a very general reputation among the students for comparatively low marking. That in spite of this he is so universally liked is not the least of the tributes to his ability and character.

ANNIVERSARY.

Austin Lewis of Dana, Mass. celebrated his 64th birthday Feb. 24, 1899, by a gathering of neighbors. The evening was spent pleasantly. The company united in games; a generous collection of cakes, sandwiches, cream puffs, fruit and confectionery was served. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and family settled in Doubleday Village nearly two years ago. They came from Athol. Mr. Lewis has quite a number of acquaintances in Springfield, as he worked at clerking a number of years. He has property in S. Dakota and it is there his home attractions seem to linger. He is well acquainted with the western part of the country. He served in the brigade under the command of Gen. Sibley in the western part of Minnesota fighting the Indians for a time. He often speaks of the time when the army saved the lives of nearly 200 women and children and their gratitude at their escape. He is familiar with the Indian's warwhoop and songs. He has an Indian pipe and spear in full rig, also a collection of bead work. He draws a pension for infirmities which he received while in that service. —Worcester West Chronicle.

MARRIAGES.

At the residence of Abner Lewis and wife, Wednesday, March 29, 1899, by Rev. A. A. King, of Oxford, Franklin Lewis and Minnie Steinke. James Lewis acted as best man. A large number of friends and relatives were present to witness this happy event, and to partake of the sumptuous dinner which followed. They will live near Stamford, Neb.

DEATHS.

In Baltimore, March 3, 1899, Mrs. Nancy Minor Lewis, wife of Maj.

William F. Lewis, U. S. A., and daughter of Col. James W. Bowles and Mrs. Annie F. Bowles of Louisville, Ky.

Frederick H. Lewis of Woburn, Mass., the well-known music instructor, who received a fractured skull while housing his pleasure steamer at his cottage on Battery Point, Lake Massabesic, N. H., Wednesday, died Friday evening, never having regained consciousness. Mr. Lewis was born in Manchester, N. H., July 9, 1856. His father is a well-known overseer and member of the board of assessors. The deceased was a fine organist, and when very young played at several of the Manchester churches. He afterward removed to Woburn, where, for some time, he was organist at the Unitarian Church in that place.

Aug. 29, 1878, Mr. Lewis m Annie M. Soule, daughter of Leander Soule of Taunton, a well-known promoter of festival music. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis had two sons—one who died in infancy, and Frederick Percival Lewis, who survives. Besides the widow and one son, Mr. Lewis is survived by father and mother and one brother, Walter H. Lewis, the well-known Manchester musician and composer.

The deceased was one of the original members of the Manchester Cadets. He became a Mason in Woburn, Mass., affiliating with Mt. Horeb Lodge of that town, then the chapter and afterward Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templars, also of Woburn. [Clipping gave no clue to date of death.—Ed.]

At Louisville, Ky. Apr. 25, 1899, Emma Mix Lewis ae. twenty-eight years, at the family home, 1027 West Broadway, of nervous prostration. She had been ill for two months. She was the dau. of Harvey W. and Emma (Mix) Lewis.

At Deland, Fla. Mar. 2, 1899, Mrs. George A. Lewis of Naugatuck, Ct. Mrs. Lewis, although of a rather retiring disposition because of the fact that her health has not been good for several years, was known as a most estimable woman, and loved by all her acquaintances. Emma F. Lewis was the daughter of Thomas and Eliza Lewis, born in Naugatuck May 16th, 1847, married to George A. Lewis here May 16th, 1867, by the Rev. C. S. Sherman, at the time pastor of the Congregational church of which, she was a member. Besides her husband she leaves one son, Tracy S. Lewis, also one sister, Mrs. A. D. Warner of Beacon Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sharpe (v p 47, Vol. IV) went to Huntington Apr. 10, 1899, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sharpe's sister, Mrs. Julia M. Field, of Shelton. Mrs. Fields was taken sick while caring for her son who died in December, and since then had been with her daughter, Mrs. Royal Birdsey, of Huntington. Mrs. Fields was the daughter of Harry and Amanda Sherman Lewis of Monroe. She was in her sixty-ninth year. The burial was in the family lot in East Village, Monroe, Ct.—Seymour Record.

OBITUARIES.

(From Syracuse, N. Y. Evening Herald.)

"At 2 o'clock this afternoon Apr. 3, 1899, funeral services were held over the remains of Second Lieut. Lewis H. Lewis, late of the Ninth United States infantry, in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church of Washington, D. C. Simultaneously memorial services were conducted at Cobleskill and at Amsterdam. Lieutenant Lewis was born in the former town and was taken by his parents to Amsterdam when a lad ten years old. Five or six years afterwards as the result of a competitive examination ıe won a cadet-ship at West Point ,nd was named for the place by Repre-entative John Sanford. Throughout is career at the academy, Cadet Lewis ıade himself one of the most popular t that institution. It is because of is reputation as a boy and a young ıan in the places where he was best nown that this unusual mark of onor is rendered to his memory to-ay.

"Lieutenant Lewis was killed by a panish bullet in front of Santiago on ıly 1st and his body was brought ere on the Crook last week. From l over New York State floral offer-gs from the many friends of his mily have come. His father was a ell-known hotel man in New York ate and for several years was one the proprietors of The Willard here.

ARNOLD ANGELL LEWIS.

(From N. Y. Mail and Express.)

The passing away of such a charac-as the late Arnold Angell Lewis mands more than a brief record of s death. For fifty years he has been member of the Chamber of Commerce, d for fully sixty years an integral rt of New York City life, knowing d being known by a large propor-n of the older as well as the present neration of down-town business men. For nearly forty years he was in rcantile life, corner of Front street d Coenties slip, being the senior rtner in the firm of Lewis & Brown, l for the last twenty years he has n a broker in commercial paper Hanover stseet.

Ir. Lewis was remarkably affable l courteous in manner. The writer his notice has known him intimate-for more than fifty years, and has er heard one word relative to him ers than of praise and commendation Ir. Lewis was born in New Berlin, mango County, N. Y., his parents ng among the first settlers of that part of the State, coming there from Providence, R. I., in 1800. He was descended in direct line from Roger Williams, and also from Harris, Arnold, Olney, Whipple and many others of the founders of Rhode Island. Mr. Lewis was a grandson of Col. Israel Angell, who rendered distinguished service in the Revolutionary Army under Washington, and who was one of the charter members of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Mr. Lewis was a member of the Colonial Wars and Sons of the Revolution, and was interested in many other societies. He married Mary Ann Caldecott, of Horncastle, Lincolnshire, England, and of his seven children two survive him—Mrs. F. H. Lovell, of New York, and Mrs. C. E. Rogers, of Brooklyn. M. H. A.

Clippings.

When Horace Lewis left the stock company at the Castle Square Theatre in Boston he was immediately engaged by Julia Arthur and remained a member of her company until the close of her New York engagement at Wallack's Theatre. While there he played three very distinct parts, the Earl of Dunstanwolde in "A Lady of Quality," Polydor in "Ingomar," and Adam in "As You Like It," giving to all of them an individuality as striking and forcible as the very remarkable disguises in which his skill at making up enabled him to envelop their bodily aspect. Our portrait shows him as Adam, and indicates his ability at catching the external as well as the intellectual attributes of a character. Mr. Lewis is now playing in "The Last Chapter," the successor of "The Christian" at the Garden Theatre in New York.—From March 1899 Nickell.
